Woman Suffrage.

Woman suffrage, a question before the civilized world, at the present time, is attracting opinions and views, from many different sources. The writer wishes to publicly express some of his own personal, individual opinions.

He believes in woman suffrage to a modified extent, as follows:—

Allow women to vote after becoming of age, if she marries, surrender her the right, if she become a widow, restore the right, if she become divorced, still deny her the right, as she is still married according to The Divine Law, and may have a tendency to break up the divorce curse. Prohibit all persons, male and female, from voting who cannot read and write, habitual drunkards and prostitutes.

Married woman should confine their interests and abilities to the government of the home. It is true, the majority of them have no home to govern, but, that is not the fault of the husband; it is the fault of the system of the country's government.

Whenever slavery is abolished, as many of you think has been, in 1863, but, was not, or never has been, then the wife will have a home to govern, her husband will be her diplomat, her protector, her representative to a broader field of human government.

She will be The Divine Governor of the family and the representative of natural government and all that is pure and holy.

It is true, women are placed in the very jaws of death, in order to continue and increase the human race, and suffer great hardship in the performance of this duty, but, they must also consider it is the workings of God and nature, and if a women die of child-birth, her soul flies to the arms of her Saviour as pure as the new drifting snow, for she died a martyr to His cause.

Many women places their lives in a more perilous position by trying to shrink from that duty and the results are by more fatal, in death, shattered health, weak in body and mind, and their soul placed before God's mercy, from what is commonly known as, RACE SUICIDE.

Your grandmothers, knew not of such practices, and they did not want to vote, but, had all they could attend to with the duties of the home. It is the childless, or the one, or two children in the family woman, who wants to vote, for scandal being scarce, wish something new with which to occupy their minds and back fence gossip.

With apologies to the good, true and sincere childless woman.

QUO VADIS.

The April Metropolitan.

The "True Story of the Cleveland Gold Bond Isssue," in the April Metropolitan Magazine tells for the first time what took place behind the scenes in that memorable transaction and describes the dramatic interview between Grover Cleveland and J. P. Morgan at the White House. It is an important article and full of human interest. "Pennant Chances" is a forcast of the coming race for honors in the National League, by John J. McGraw, manager of the New York "Giants," In "The Consumers' Dollar" H. W. Collingwood gives a clear, common sense fact story of the way the farmer and consumer lose to the middleman. In the current instalment of "The Romances of Buried Treasure" Ralph D. Paine describes the efforts being made to recover the greatest treasure-trove of history. George S. Chappell discourses humorously on "The Woes of the Architect," and at the same time supplies some wise hints on house building. The fiction includes "The Wild West in Denninsport', by Mary Heaton Vorse, "The Watch" by Robert C. Brown, and "A Runaway Spartan" by Edna Kenton. Anthony Hope's serial, "Mrs. Maxon Protests," is continued.

Basket Ball.

Through fast floor work and good all around playing, the Plank Road Hollow School quintette defeated the local Emporium High School five, to the tune of 28 to 12, at the Keystone Park last Monday evening. The contest was marked by many fine plays including long field goals, making it interesting throughout. Close, at center, starred for the P. R. H. S., playing rings around the adversary's center. Johnson also played his usual good game, scoring ten points. Nystrom and Hogan excelled for the E. H. S. Following is the line-up:

Hogan,	Forward	Bauer
Nystrom,	Forward	Johnson
Getchel,	Center	Close
Burfield,	Guard	Horning
Hertig,	Guard (Zimmer)	Ruberto

Field Goals: P. R. H. S., Bauer, 8; Close, 8; Johnson, 10, with two foul goals. L. R. H.

Good Roads Train.

The Good Roads Train visited Emporium two days this week--Monday and Tuesday evenings, remaining here over night, guests of The Warner. They came from the east Monday afternoon, remaining here until Tuesday morning when they departed for Port Allegany, Eldred and Smethport, returning to Emporium Tuesday night. This tour closes a very satisfactory eight weeks tour of the State, their lectures and exhibits being attended by over 52,000 persons. Col. John A. Woodward, in charge of the outfit, is very gratified with their reception.

"Distance Too Great."

Wm. H. Howard, chairman of the Farmers Institutes in this county, meets with many amusing circumstances while "working up an interest" in this county. Recently he received the following: "Heaven—Pearl Avenue, Wm. H. Howard, County Chairman of Institutes, Emporium, Pa. Dear Sir:—In reply to reverse side, I wish you to excuse me and ——— from attending your institutes, as it has pleased the Almighty Father to remove us from your world about twelve years ago and as the distance is so great between Heaven and earth, I will have to decline your kind invitation." Mr. Howard has placed the letter on file and some day may have a good laugh with the Pearl Avenue friend.

New Industry at Beechwood.

Mr. J. J. Erich, of Beechwood, who is busily at work getting ready to erect a saw mill, hub factory, etc., at Beechwood, was a PRESS visitor last Saturday, accompanied by our friend J. G. Nyheart. Mr. Erich is a practical lumberman and will give employment to from 75 to 100 men in mill and woods the coming season, the larger portion of the men to be engaged in cutting chemical wood. He has moved his family to Beechwood and occupies the comfortable house vacated by Mr. C. R. Kline. Having been actively engaged in the lumber business in this county and Elk for eleven years he is reliable and a successful operator. It will take five or more years to cut the timber now contracted for. Beechwood will now take on new life and this industry will be a great help to that section of our county. Glad of it, for Mr. Erich is a reliable gentleman and we are very favorably impressed with his modest manner.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

FOBERT.

Edward Fobert, the five year old son of Mrs. Bertha Fobert, of this place, died at Buffalo, N. Y., early last Friday morning. The cause of his death was spinal meningitis. He had been a patient little sufferer with the disease for about two weeks. Edward was a bright and interesting little chap and the death comes as a severe blow to his devoted mother, who was with him during his illness and at the time of his death. The remains arrived at Emporium, Friday evening and were taken to the undertaking rooms of Mr. Bernard Egan, from which place they were taken to St. Marks Cemetery on Saturday afternoon; the interment was strictly private, owing to the contagious disease. The bereaved mother has the sympathy of all in her sorrow.

BURLINGAME.

DELOS BURLINGAME, of Altoona, Pa., formerly a resident of Portage township, this county, died at his residence on March 28th, 1911, after an illness of one week. Mr. Burlingame was born at Smethport, Pa., Sept. 22, 1829, his age therefore being 81 years, six months and six days. Deceased leaves two daughters and three sons to mourn his death, viz: Mrs. Rose Sage, Miss Verna, H. D. and B. N., at home and Elmer E., Johnsonburg. Funeral services were held at Altoona this morning, Rev. H L. Bowlby, pastor of First Presbyterian Church officiating. The remains will arrive here this (Thursday) afternoon on Buffalo Flyer, arrangements having been made to have the train stop at Sizerville, where interment will be made in the family lot. Rev. Mr. Bent, pastor of Presbyterian Church, Emporium, will conduct the services at the grave. Friends from this place can take the same train, returning to Emporium on evening train. We hope to publish an appropriate obituary in our next issue.

MILLER.

James H. Miller died at the home of his sister, Mrs. H. A. Washburn, at Waverly, Wash., on March 15th, of consumption. Mr. Miller was formerly a resident of this place and was a brother of Mrs. Jos. Holcom.

SPRING OPENINGS.

KUEHNE.

The Spring Opening at the store of Mr. R. Kuehne is now in full operation and the large and beautiful store never looked better. The millinery department is the greatest attraction for the ladies, this years season contains a larger and far superior quality of goods than ever before displayed. Hats of the latest creations are in charge of an expert milliner, Miss Seery, of Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Kuehne has also on display a collection of real lace ranging in price up to $20.00 per yard. It is well worth a trip to this store and inspect these wonderful laces. SEGERS.

The first spring opening, known as Carnation Day, will be celebrated in first-class shape at the Ice Cream and Confectionery Parlors of Seger & Co., on Wednesday, April 5th. The store will under-go several changes and will be made beautiful in its appearance. Every purchaser on that day will receive a lovely carnation as a gift from the firm. Mr. and Mrs. Seger have recently visited the larger cities and are now prepared to serve all the latest drinks and ice cream dishes known to the general public. A musical programme will be rendered during the afternoon and evening, for the benefit and pleasure of their guests. Get the habit of going to Segers; you will be pleased with your treatment.

Paul—Danforth.

At 1:30 p. m., Thurday, March 23rd, some thirty guests assembled at the home of Mrs. Nellie Danforth, East Emporium, the occasion being the marriage of her daughter Miss Rose Nellie Beck Danforth to Mr. Charles Harrison Paul, of Renovo. The ceremony took place at 1:45, Rev. T. W. Murray, Pastor of the Free Methodist Church officiating. Fred Mason and Ada Mason acted the part of best man and brides's maid. After the ceremony they all retired to the dining room where a bounteous repast was served. The presents were numerous. The happy coule left for an extended trip to the east on the 3:18 train, amid showers of rice and best wishes of their many friends. After their return they will set up house keeping at St. Marys, Pa.

Trout Fry.

On Monday, April 3rd the Corry state hatchery, will ship to Emporium a quantity of trout fry. The cans will be in charge of a special officer from the hatchery. All persons who have sent requisitions for trout should be on hand to see that they are properly taken care of.

New Flyers.

When the new schedule on the Pennsy railroad, which will appear in the near future, two new flyers may be added between Buffalo and Philadelphia and other changes will likely be made in train service on the Middle division.

Unique Good-Bye to Rev. Mr. J. F. Anderson.

On Sunday evening last, after the regular services of the several churches were over, Revs. Messrs. Bent, Bogue and Tate went down to the First Methodist Episcopal Church to hear the closing words of the popular Divine's sermon and to say good-bye to him. Rev. Mr. Anderson having finished his sermon called on Rev. Mr. Bent, Pastor of Presbyterian Church, to pronounce the benediction, whereupon Mr. Bent stated that several of the ministers of our town had come to show their ard and good will for Mr. Anderson, when they were invited to seats on the platform. Rev. Mr. Bent, acting as chief spokesman, called on Rev. Mr. Tate, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, who said that the words: "He was a good man, full of the Holy Ghost and Faith," could be truthfully applied to Rev. Mr. Anderson. Mr. Tate said that Mr. Anderson held a large place in the hearts of the people of this community; that he wished him even larger success and greater blessings in his new field of labor and that if we were denied the pleasure of meeting, here that he expected to meet him in Heaven. Mr. Tate also spoke of Rev. Mr. Weeks, the newly appointed Pastor of the church, as being an enthusiatic worker, eloquent speaker and consecrated Christian man—both gentlemen being natives of Everett, Pa.

Rev. Mr. Bogue, Pastor of First Baptist Church, took as his theme, "Ships That Pass in the Night." He said he had received many kind words and much good advice from Rev. Mr. Anderson, which he treasured and appreciated and had done him much good.

Rev. Mr. Bent very feelingly expressed his genuine regard and affection for Mr. Anderson and felt very keenly the loss he and this community would sustain in the departure of Mr. Anderson and his estimable family from our city.

Freight Car Consumed.

Special to the Press:—

As Train No. 92, east bound, was passing Benzinger at 2:12 Tuesday morning, Operator W. L. Keiser discovered sparks coming from the roof of a box car, near the middle of the train. He at once notified the Supt's office and the train was stopped and examined at Rathbun, but nothing was discovered until the train reached Beechwood when the fire broke out. It was found to be a car of charcoal which had been over-heated. The car was side-tracked at Beechwood and despite the efforts of the trainmen it was entirely consumed by the flames. Great credit is due to Mr. Keiser, one of Pennsy's efficient operators, for keeping watch of all conditions while on duty.

Society Events.

DELIGHTFUL PARTY,

A very delightful party was given Miss Lettie Craven, at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Pye, on Portage street, last Thursday evening. Twenty-five young people were present and the evening was pleasantly spent in games and music. An elegant luncheon was served.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craven, Saturday evening last, in honor of their daughter, Miss Lettie Craven. All enjoyed the evening by playing games and "pulling taffy."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, March 25, 1911.

It is said that the United States imported more than forty millions of dollars worth of diamonds last year. This country, as might be expected, is the greatest diamond market in the world. It also furnishes the greatest harvest in world for diamond thieves. It is said that most ladies of the "four hundred" wear paste diamonds in order to avoid the exposure of their real gems to the cupidity of the light fingered experts. Good scheme, but why pay for the real if the spurious will do as well?

It appears that the distinguished millitary experts of France and Germany are strenuously at work to show that the United States and Japan must fight. The argument of the German expert is that the control of the Pacific is essential to the commercial existence of Japan, and that in order to maintain the supremacy Japan must have the control of Guam and Hawaii as coaling stations and bases of supply. But can Japan control the Pacific? Will not England, Germany, France Russia and other great European powers have something to say with reference to the control of the Pacific? Great Britain is easily five times as powerful on the sea as Japan, and yet she does not pretend to control the Atlantic or even the Mediterrean, of which she holds both the gates, Suez and Gibraltar. The Mediterranean is an opean sea. Japan cannot control the Pacific. It is doubtful if she could control the inland sea of Japan, to say nothing of the Yellow Sea, the sea of China and other contiguous waters. The Pacific is by odds the biggest of oceans, and no nation or nations can control it. The same writer argues that the United States has only twenty-three warships in the Pacific, while Japan has 125. He is mistaken. Japan has 125 thousand, but they are mostly san pand, a kind of fishing boat carrying two or three persons with a tail oar. The Japanese will have much to do with the navigation of the Pacific for they are unexcelled as sailors and can conduct a carrying trade at less than half the cost of and American or European country; but the talk of any nation controling the Pacific is as extravagant as it would be to talk of controlling the other.

The first step of the extra session of Congress will be to pass the Canada reciprocity bill, and the second step will be, it is said, to materially reduce the tariff on wool and woollen goods. If this can be accomplished, the western Senator who has been called the greatest shepherd since Abraham will will lose a million or two dollars but ninety millions of Americans will wear more elegant and more comfortable attire. Nit!

Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered Miss Emma Morris, last Thursday evening, at the home of her parents, when a number of her friends and schoolmates gathered to celebrate her fifteenth birthday. The evening was spent in playing games and a bountiful repast was served at mid-night. After wishing their young hostess many happy returns of the day the jolly youngsters departed for their homes. Those present were: Misses Anna Zurfluh, Florence Nelson, Rosemary Quinn, Zeta Wells, Neoma Dodge, Mae Vought, Frances Kinsler, Edna Armstrong, Mae Mott, Alice Uray, Helen Vought, Bessie Edwards, Marie Edelman, Mary Bauer and Messrs. John Creaton, Carl Johnson, Forest Campbell, John and Andrew Bauer, George Ness, Carl and Josie Blumle, Fred Minard, Earl Vought, John and Leo Burfield, Claude Wookcock, Lawrence Lathrope, Harry Stumpf and John Ruberto.

Caught in the Yard.

Thomas Law and Henry Haupt are organizing a ball team to take part in the local games this season and have some good material already selected. We understand Mr. Law is reading up the latest Japanese fads.

Norfolk and Western Engine, No. 991, which has been tested on Kane Hill during the past month, has been brought to Emporium and is being used to push trains from Emporium to Keating Summit on the B. & A. V., Division. This is one of the largest locomotives in the world and is of the Mallet Compound type and does the work of two common engines on the hill.

Chief yard clerk George Beattie, of the yard office, was off duty on Sunday enjoying a day's rest and recreation.

Night switch-tender Mills, who has been laid up with an injured foot for the past few days, has resumed duty.

Signal inspector John H. Beck has returned from a two weeks' visit among relatives and friends in the eastern part of the State. John says there is no town like Emporium; so say all of us.

Messenger Harry E. Hott has been complimented by his superiors for his efficient service and active interest in handling the Postal Telegraph business. Harry is a bright young man and will eventually reach the top of the ladder.

Extra Operator Sullivan is writing a new play, entitled "The Broken Switch." This play is taken from actual railroad scenes and the characters therein are track walkers, signalmen, telegraphers and yardmasters. The play is full of exciting situations and deep mysteries and should be a success.

A Welcome to New Pastor.

A reception will be given the Rev. J. Emory Weeks, the newly appointed pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, on Tuesday evening, in the Church parlors. A cordial invitation is extended to all members and friends of the Church and Sunday School.

NO LANDSLIDE LIKELY

COUNTRY NOT READY TO CHANGE GOVERNMENT.

Democratic Party Unwise in Its Assumption of Victory in the Coming Presidential Campaign—Significance in Figures.

There is a widespread impression that the test of public sentiment in the fall of 1910 indicated a complete landslide for the Democratic ticket in 1912. It is generally believed that the Democrats swept the country by an enormous majority in the total vote for congressmen, and that they have only to come somewhere near holding their ground to repeat that triumph in the presidential campaign.

The figures do not warrant this conclusion. There was no such one-sided fight last fall. There is no reason to expect anything of the kind next year.

Taking the vote for congressmen as the test throughout the country, because some states held no election for state offices and in others the results were much mixed, the official returns show that the Republicans carried 24 states in 1910, with a total of 210 electoral votes. These states are California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The Democrats carried twenty-two states with a total of 273 electoral votes. They were successful in Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

On the total popular vote for Congressmen the Democratic margin was about equal to the sum of the Democratic majorities in Texas and Louisiana. Outside of three or four states in the South where the elections always go by default, without a real contest, the Republicans carried the country on the vote for congressmen.

Looking only at the electoral vote as it would be if the states all remained next year where they stood last November, it should be noted that New York has thirty-nine votes in the electoral college, on the apportionment as it is today. The Empire State will be relatively stronger in 1912. If the thirty-nine votes of New York are subtracted from the total of 273 votes which the Democrats would have on the basis of last fall's test of public sentiment, only 234 remain. If the thirty-nine votes of New York are added to the 210 which seemed safely Republican last November the total rises to 249, or fifteen more than the Democrats appear to have a chance of getting without New York.

Looks Like a Case of Quality.

A free-trade paper cites the price of beef in El Paso, Texas, and in Juarez, Mexico, across the Rio Grande, as evidence of the effect of the tariff on the cost of food. Says this remarkable source of light and leading:

"One pound of sirloin steak in El Paso costs 15 cents; just across the Rio Grande in Juarez 5 cents buys a pound of steak. The tariff is 1½ cents a pound."

On the face of the figures the tariff cannot possibly account for 8½ cents out of the total difference of 10 cents. What explains 85 per cent. of the increase over Mexican prices when the international boundary is crossed? The tariff cannot be held responsible for more than 15 per cent. of the difference, at the utmost.

It looks like a case of quality in the meat, together with generally primitive and antiquated ways of working and doing business in the land of Diaz and the insurrectos.

Penalty of Our Indifference.

The history of the relation of the United States to the rest of the American republics is for the most part a history of indifference and neglect. We have not known nor cared how the younger sisters were faring. We have gone our ways to our farms and our merchandise as if they had no existence. Brazil, the Argentine and Chili have done marvelous things in the conquest of new countries and the building up of mighty cities; but no part of the glory has been ours. . . . To be neglectful of moral and human obligations is always expensive in a money sense also. The importer and the publicist, the shipper and the philanthropist may well take common interest in this conference.

In Agreement With Japan.

In spite of the senseless little flurry on the Pacific coast the new agreement with Japan has escaped the senate's "graveyard of treaties." Its prompt ratification is a welcome exhibition of good sense in the upper house. The new treaty does not mainly concern immigration and does not practically affect it.

The pledged honor and the interest of Japan are alike involved in keeping her own people at home, or as colonists in Korea, Saghalien and Formosa. From all Asia east of Turkey our immigration last year was less than that from the West Indies, which was chiefly colored. The Japanese numbered but 27 out of every 10,000 in the total.

DIFFICULT PATH TO TREAD

Representative Underwood of Alabama Has Been Called Upon to Face Much Trouble.

In a few weeks Mr. Underwood of Alabama may be the most conspicuous public man in America, and remain so for months. If the sixty-second congress sits in extra session the tariff will be the principal topic of discussion, and the chairman of the ways and means committee will lead the discussion. The moves he makes will all be closely appraised. The words he utters in debate will all be read and reread with care. The revision proposed will be known—at the start at least—as the Underwood revision. If the unexpected should happen, and the senate, through a combination of insurgent Republicans and Democrats, should accept the house's work, the new law will be known as the Underwood law. For these reasons a very white light will beat on the gentleman from Alabama from the moment he takes the reins.

His home is in Birmingham—a prosperous city, with the local capital invested in manufactures. The iron industry flourishes there, and the place is called in business circles the Pittsburg of the South. Protection as a policy is well considered even in Democratic circles. Birmingham has profited by its operations. And constituencies, north, south, east and west, after discovering a good thing and feeling its value want to hold on to it.

How will Mr. Underwood, an outspoken revenue-tariff man, meet the emergency and with what result to his personal fortunes? Several of his Democratic predecessors in a similar endeavor "lost out." Colonel Morrison of Illinois, by his course as chairman of ways and means, weakened himself at home, and in a few years had to yield his place. Mr. Mills was more fortunate, and survived his tariff bill ten years, going meanwhile to the senate. But his influence waned after his tariff fight, and Mr. Bailey's attitude today on the tariff is not that of Mr. Mills of 20 odd years ago. Mr. Springer's popgun bills were not seriously regarded, but they contributed to his retirement from congress.

It was Mr. Wilson of West Virginia who paid a heavy and immediate penalty for his tariff views and record. His constituents were interested in protection, and resented his course in the revision of 1894, which in part bore his name. Down he went at the first chance they got at him. Mr. Cleveland broke his fall with an appointment to the cabinet, and from the cabinet he passed to the presidency of a Virginia college, but his political hold at home was completely destroyed.

Mr. Underwood will tread a difficult path, and probably knows it. He has said that some of his protection constituents consider him a free trader, while some of his associates in congress, because of his constituents, consider him a protectionist. When he gets in to his stride as chairman of ways and means both sides may attack him, and if they do his road will be as rocky as the famous one to Dublin. A straddle on the tariff is the most frequently attempted, and yet the most difficult, thing in our politics.

Knox Plan Working Well.

That the arbitration agreement between Peru and Ecuador arranged by Secretary Knox and recently signed in Washington has already brought about good feeling between the two countries is indicated by the announcement that Senor M. H. Cornejo, Peruvian minister to Spain, and L. F. Carbo, the Ecuadorean peace commissioner, will sail together in adjoining suites on the Hamburg-American steamship Prince Joachim, leaving for Colon on Saturday. The recent acuteness of their respective nations' relations were apparently forgotten as they marched up arm in arm to the steamship offices to purchase their tickets.

No Thought of Annexation.

President Taft has frankly disavowed that reciprocity has the slightest relation to political union with Canada and now Premier Laurier of the Dominion is allaying the fears of the timorous on his side of the international boundary. There is no occasion for misunderstanding on this subject and there would be no apprehension but for the deliberate attempts made in certain quarters to misrepresent the facts for the purpose of arousing opposition to the plan. But thinking people in the United States and Canada will not be deceived by such transparent trickery.

Could Get Lion's Share.

"The superiority of American goods has forced a market for them to the southward. What would the market be if those goods were systematically introduced, after the way had been paved by an intelligent development of the policies so well inaugurated by Secretaries Hay and Root? With good will established and with due regard on the part of exporters to the wishes of buyers as to styles, sizes, packing and terms of payment, the United States could gain the lion's share of the trade of Latin America without waiting for the uncertain outcome of reciprocity arrangements."—Washington Post.

Democratic Chairman Underwood says his party "made a very thorough investigation of the tariff eighteen months ago." The country hopes it is different from the Democratic tariff investigation and business extermination of eighteen years ago.

Shapes for Spring

BY JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

THREE of the prettiest shapes among the new hats for spring are shown here. One might choose with the eyes shut and be sure of possessing grace, style and real beauty in any of these. They fit well and are only moderately large.

Hemp and milan appear to lead in the point of popularity, but there are innumerable lovely models in other braids as well—hair braid, pyroxylin, chip, leghorn, tuscan, in fact every braid, including the rough Japs, finds a following, and there is no lack of variety in size or shape.

The hair braids and hemps are greatly favored for dress hats to be trimmed with French plumes and lace or ribbon—or both. Milans and hemps are liked for big masses of flowers. Many of these trimmed with big bunches of lilacs are blooming in triumph at Palm Beach just now.

A great many shapes are shown with borders (called "flanges") of velvet, and some are faced with velvet. Small shapes with upturned brims nearly always are improved by a velvet facing on the brim or coronet. The velvet flange is an undoubted advantage, adding finish and distinction to the shape. Its placing is a matter of perfect workmanship.

It will be noticed that crowns in the hats are conservative; they are not specially large or high or noticeable in any way. The achievement of grace in outline is the paramount idea in spring shapes and is more highly regarded than any other feature. This is a good sign. So far there seems to be an absence of freakishness this season, in any direction.

It looks as if flowers were to catch the fancy of all women young enough to wear flower-laden shapes. They are so pretty. Both the hats and flowers come in great ranges of lovely colors. Milans in the yellow or natural color and hemps in all colors give a choice from grave to gay and all the notes between.

There is a shape for every face. It is very essential to pick out the most becoming one and this is a serious matter.

FOR CHILD'S WEAR IN SPRING

Dress of White Dimity Is About the Most Dainty That Can Possibly Be Devised.

Tige and I are sweethearts—all that troubles me is that his old brown coat never gets too old to wear, so I can't make him nice new clothes like what mamma makes for me. This is my new white dimity for spring. Mamma says she likes to have all her sewing done by the time hot weather comes. The dress has a long blouse and double ruffle on the skirt and this is my blue sash. I wear it when I have the blue ribbon in my hair and usually I wear pale blue or white stockings. Mamma says these are "Gibson" plaits over my shoulders, and there are two narrow insertions of lace down the middle of my blouse. Mamma considers short sleeves the best for summer or winter, and she says she likes to have the skirts of my dresses solid embroidery because they are so fluffy. Sometimes I wear kid shoes, but usually black slippers—they're so sensible—and pretty, too. I'm six years old.—Anna M. Denniston in the Chicago News.

Handsome beaded bags show no signs of waning in popularity, but the ones done with tiny beads are the thing.

MEDIUM STYLES FOR SPRING

Coming Millinery Will Offer Many Choices, So That Surely All May Be Suited.

The woman who cannot find millinery to suit her this season will indeed be very difficult to please. Not in many years has it been made possible for women to be so sanely and, at the same time, so fashionably hatted as at present.

The styles are medium in all things. Crowns are moderately high, brims are neither too wide nor too narrow, and trimmings are in no wise exaggerated.

The smart-looking turbans are most attractive and come in a variety of models and colorings to suit every type of face. As a rule, two colors are combined, and not infrequently two fabrics besides the trimmings. A soft, coarse, rather wide straw and the fine braid of crinoline are a favored combination. The crown in folds will be of the heavier straw and the crushed brim of the crinoline or hair. The golden shades, which include lemon, ecru and leghorn, are preferred for the crown, while the brim will be of a contrasting color, as blue, dark red, green or black.

No less attractive than the shapes are the trimmings. The cockade of chanticleer red velvet decorating a hat of golden and black tones is an example of smart, becoming lines. A modified sugar loaf hat, the crown entirely concealed under tiny rosebuds, and the brim of black flexible straw, is another pretty model. A tiny blackbird nestling on the left side is the only trimming.

The fashionable trimmings are small flowers, single quills, small birds, medium wings, soft ribbons and velvet.

Now for Turned-Up Hats.

Once more will it be possible to see women's eyes and hair. Hat brims still will be large, but they are to be turned up. Hats with straw brims that turn up boldly in front, at the side or front and back are seen among the models for the fast coming spring time. They come in all sizes. One of the new forms is 18 inches long and 23 inches wide. Extra large hats, however, will be worn only be the extremists. Even women are weary of them, for they have been carried to such absurd measurements that they no longer are picturesque.

Novel Collar.

The string ties which women are wearing with their tailored shirt waists come in the loveliest of colors. The materials used are innumerable, but all, of course, have the silky finish.

A novel collar shows to good advantage a string tie of ciel blue corded silk. The high, straight, turn-down collar fastens in front. Wide, vertical eyelet slits appear around the collar at intervals of about two inches, and through these is run the tie, which is knotted in front in four-in-hand fashion.

In Its Due Order.

Champ Clark, at a dinner in Washington, pleaded indulgence for a somewhat rambling speaker.

"He'll arrive," said the Democratic leader, "if you'll only give him time. He is like Dr. Thirdly.

"Dr. Thirdly was dividing up his sermon into its appropriate heads one Sunday morning when a member of the congregation shouted irascibly:

"'Meat, man! Give us meat!'

"'Well,' said Dr. Thirdly promptly, 'hold on, then, till I'm done carving.'"

WOULD LIE AWAKE ALL NIGHT WITH ITCHING ECZEMA

"Ever since I can remember I was a terrible sufferer of eczema and other irritating skin diseases. I would lie awake all night, and my suffering was intolerable. A scaly humor settled on my back, and being but a child, I naturally scratched it. It was a burning, itching sensation, and utterly intolerable, in fact, it was so that I could not possibly forget about it. It did not take long before it spread to my shoulders and arms, and I was almost covered with a mass of raw flesh on account of my scratching it. I was in such a condition that my hands were tied.

"A number of physicians were called, but it seemed beyond their medical power and knowledge to cure me. Having tried numerous treatments without deriving any benefit from them, I had given myself up to the mercy of my dreadful malady, but I thought I would take the Cuticura treatment as a last resort. Words cannot express my gratitude to the one who created 'The Cuticura Miracles,' as I have named them, for now I feel as if I never suffered from even a pimple. My disease was routed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I shall never cease praising the wonderful merits they contain. I will never be without them, in fact, I can almost dare any skin diseases to attack me so long as I have Cuticura Remedies in the house. I hope that this letter will give other sufferers an idea of how I suffered, and also hope that they will not pass the 'Cuticura Life Saving Station.'" (Signed) C. Louis Green, 929 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 29, 1910.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

MEXICO'S WEALTHIEST MAN

Not unlike the mighty estates of the old patroons, who used to own tremendous tracts of land around New York and whose sway was more powerful than that of the most puissant feudal baron in Europe, is that of Gen. Don Luis Terrazas, "boss" of the state of Chihuahua, owner of more than half the land included within its wide boundaries and the richest man in Mexico. His wealth is estimated at not less than $25,000,000 gold and many estimate it much higher. Terrazas is of interest at this time, for many people are saying that he and his son-in-law, Enrique Creel, are responsible for the rebellion in Mexico.

Gen. Don Luis Terrazas has lived all his life in Chihuahua. His parents were small landowners before the invasion of Mexico by the French. When Mexico began to try for freedom from the foreign invaders Terrazas, then a young man without influence, starting with a small body of valiant followers, built up a force sufficient to drive the French out of the northern part of Mexico. Later when the French were defeated in the south and the empire overthrown with the death of Maximilian, Terrazas took charge of the portion of Mexico now comprised by the state of Chihuahua.

Later came Diaz, and Terrazas lent his aid in subduing and forming the republic, receiving his reward "to have and to hold" the state of Chihuahua. Nominally he was elected governor. Really he was made the boss of the state, and while he has not held office as governor continually he has dictated the election of every one who has been chosen and mostly the mantle has fallen on the shoulders of some member of his own family. Therein lies the cause of the present rebellion. Citizens of Chihuahua who have taken up arms against the present government declare that Terrazas and his clan have gobbled Chihuahua; that they can only live there now as peons; that those in power are growing richer and richer every day, while the common people are growing poorer and poorer.

Short of stature, weazened and wrinkled, with his short, white beard and his Mexican cowboy dress, he walks the streets of Chihuahua today in spite of his seventy-eight years, calmly collecting his 12 per cent. and apparently unadvised that there is a rebellion in his realm which threatens to strip him of the power he has wielded for more than 30 years.

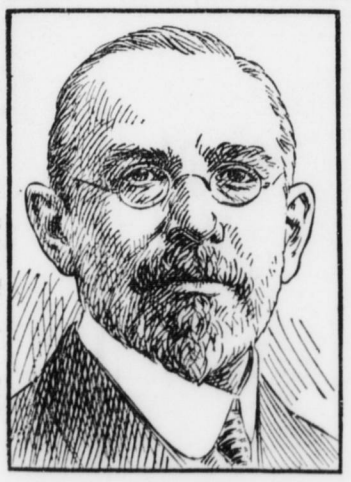
PASTOR TO HAVE BIG CHURCH

Rev. Charles F. Aked, who talked seriously of resigning the pastorate of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church—the Rockefeller church—in New York city because of the supposed failure of a pretentious building project on which he had set his heart, seems to have won his point. As a result Gotham is likely to have the greatest church on modern institutional lines in the world.

John D. Rockefeller has a plan under consideration for presenting his Fifty-fourth street home and his adjoining realty holdings as a site for the new home of the congregation. The trustees of the Fifth Avenue church have for three years been looking for a suitable site on which to build a church such as Dr. Aked desires, but the committee in charge failed to make a selection. Mr. Rockefeller has recently purchased a number of plots surrounding his home and it is believed that he is rounding out his holdings so that they may become available for the new church site if the trustees fail to find one more suitable.

The Rockefeller house, though very large, is not strictly modern, and the owner prefers his Pocantico hills estate. It is understood that he will give up his city residence if the church trustees accept certain offers he is formulating. The plan of Mr. Rockefeller and Dr. Aked, it is said, is to make the new church the greatest and most influential institution of its kind in the world.

MEMBER OF COMMERCE COURT



The successor in the interstate commerce commission of Martin Knapp, who was recently appointed to the new commerce court, is Prof. Balthuser Henry Meyer, one of the most prominent educators in the country and an authority of note on political economy and sociology.

Professor Meyer is a native of Wisconsin, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and the University of Berlin, and has been an educator since 1884, when he taught a district school in his native state. He has been a member of the Wisconsin railway commission and the new federal railway security investigating commission and has written many important articles on railway legislation and administration and other economic subjects.

The professor also served as expert special agent for the bureau of the census and interstate commerce commission.

WOULD SAVE ROADS BIG SUM

No man has been more in the public eye of late than Louis D. Brandeis, who not long ago declared that the railways could save $1,000,000 a day by proper and efficient management. Mr. Brandeis first came into prominence in 1903, when as the head of the Public Franchise league of Boston he was involved in the struggle over the reorganization of the Boston gas companies. Largely through his influence legislation was put through which permitted the unification of the gas companies on a unique principle. The total capitalization of the new company was made the same as that of the valuation of the securities of the consolidated companies. The price of gas was set at 90 cents a thousand feet. On that basis the company was allowed to pay seven per cent. on its stock and one per cent. extra for every reduction of five cents a thousand feet in the price of gas. The plan worked successfully.

Mr. Brandeis next became prominently known through his share in enabling the savings banks of Massachusetts to write industrial insurance.

SHORTHORNS POSSESS MANY EXCELLENT DAIRY QUALITIES

English Breeder Developed Milk Producing Strain and His Cows Were Well Known All Over England for Their Superiority.

From the very origin of the breed Shorthorns have had two qualities to commend them to favorable consideration, and it is this dual capacity of beef and milk production that has made them so popular with farmers and stockmen. As beef producers Shorthorns are "known of all men;" but their dairy qualities, though excellent when properly developed, are not so generally understood. The early history of the breed furnishes many instances of cows that were great milk producers, says the Northwestern Agriculturist.

One of the earliest breeders to develop milk production in his herd was Jonas Whittaker, and, as a result, his cows were known all over England for their excellent dairy beef form and soon became the fountain head from which other breeders drew their herd bulls; yet Mr. Bates was careful to cultivate the milking qualities of his herd, and in consequence, had cows that give from 24 to 34 quarts of milk per day. So persistently did he impress this in this herd of cows that many of their descendants proved excellent milkers many generations after Mr. Bates' herd was dispersed. Hence the prevailing opinion that Shorthorn cows of exceptional dairy qualities should be sought among those carrying an infusion of Bates blood has a foundation in fact; yet there are exceptions and some notable ones.

Amos Cruickshank, who drew the attention of the beef producing world

qualities. Even in the herds of the Booths, where beef form and fleshing quality was the first consideration, cows of heavy milk production were developed. Sir Charles Knightley had a tribe known as the Fawsley Fillpails that did much to establish the fame of Shrothorn cows as excellent at the pail. The herd of Thomas Bates was established about the year 1800 and soon became the most noted in England.

This herd was carefully bred for to the excellence of the Scotch Shorthorns, by the wonderful fleshing qualities he had bred into his herd, was not unmindful of the dairy qualities of his cows, and in that mavelous herd of beef cattle were many matrons quite good at the pail.

The large dairies that supply milk for London are composed quite largely, and in some cases exclusively, of Shorthorn cows. This is also true in part of dairies in New York and New England.

WATER FOR DAIRY COWS

Important That the Three or More Gallons Given to Animals Daily be Warmed to About 60 Degrees F.

It is very important that the water drunk by the cows giving three or more gallons of milk daily be warmed to about 60 degrees F. Otherwise the cows will not drink as much as they need to keep up a good milk flow. It does not take much ice water to chill a thin-fleshed cow through and through on a cold winter day, especially when she is compelled to walk some distance through the snow or a cutting wind to get to the tank or pond. Experiments made at the Missouri state experimental station show that drinking water is needed in proportion to the milk yield. That is, a cow giving six gallons of milk a day needs about twice as much water as a cow giving three gallons a day. If the water is too cold to be comfortable if drunk in large quantities, the cow will not drink enough, and as a result, will drop considerably in her milk yield. When Missouri Chief Josephine was giving about 100 pounds of milk each day last winter she drank daily about 31 gallons of water. Imagine how she would have suffered if that had been ice water. It was warmed, however, and Josephine did not chill after drinking.

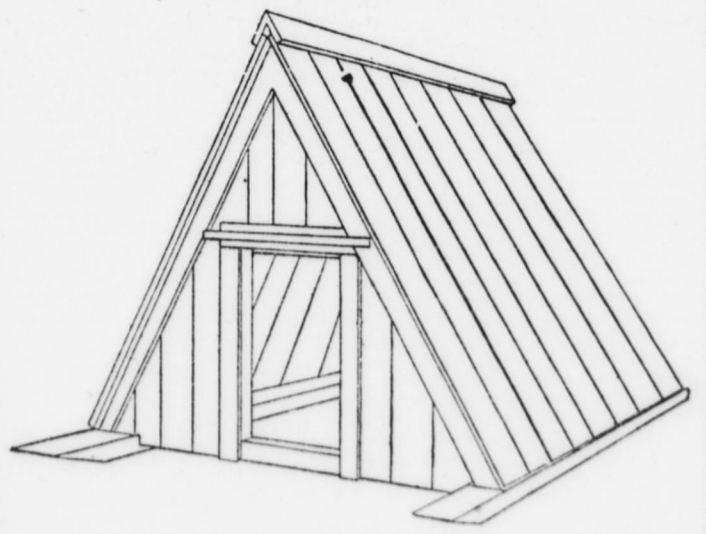
Green Feeding Worth While.

If the best results are to be obtained with poultry they must be furnished plenty of green feed, is a statement so often heard that its repetition seems silly; yet there are flocks on fairly prosperous farms where one would think the practice of regular green feeding had never been heard of.

Conditions for Live Stock.

If you are in doubt as to the conditions you should give your live stock in the barn-yard, imagine yourself in the animals' place.

CARE FOR FARROWING SOWS



To produce strong, healthy pigs, they must be looked after before they are born. The sow must be cared for and fed properly if she is to give birth to a good litter of pigs. As a rule, the sow is neglected during this period, the owner seeming to think that the application of care and feed after she has farrowed is all that is required. We should know that a poorly nourished mother means a weak, sickly litter of pigs.

The question of shelter is an important one, whether in the northern or southern states, although in the south —the far south especially—very little shelter except at farrowing time is needed. At farrowing time the mother should always be supplied with a building that will afford shelter from the rain and the wind for both the mother and the pigs until the pigs become dry. If the wind strikes the young pigs when they are first born they will often chill to death. Each farmer can make his own shelter, to be in keeping with his surroundings, but probably the best and most economical building that can be made is a portable hoghouse.

WEAK BACKS MADE STRONG.

Backache in most cases is kidney-ache, and usually accompanied by irregularities of the urine. To remove the pain and weakness, you must cure the kidneys. Do so with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Rosa Weinmann, 1927 Greenwood Terrace, Chicago, Ill., says: "So intense were the rheumatic pains in my back, I felt like screaming. They gradually became more severe until they ran all over my body. I could not sleep and could hardly move. I steadily grew worse until I could scarcely open or close my hands. No relief was obtained until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I felt better and ere long the pain left."

Exhorting the Ducks.

There are two tiny boys in this town whose mother sings often to them at their request, and as she is an ardent church woman, the children hear as many hymns as anything else. The other day they were playing with their wooden ducks in the bathtub, and strangely enough the ducks were more inclined to float sideways than in the approved manner. After several attempts to keep the misguided ducks straight the older boy shouted:

"Stand up, duck, stand up!" Then two-year-old, noting the familiar phrase, leaned over the tub and exhorted. "'Tand up, duck! 'Tand up for Jesus!"

Warned.

A serious-minded New Yorker, who, because of his dignified outlook on life, has sent his son, aged twelve, to a particularly strict and proper boarding school in New England, unexpectedly visited the school last week. Ascertaining the location of his young hopeful's room, he climbed the four flights of stairs necessary to reach it —and entered. On a mammoth placard suspended from a steel engraving of "Washington and Generals" (presented to the youth as a Christmas gift by his admiring parent) was the cheerful sentiment:

"Don't spit on the ceiling. We have lost our ladder."

Her Wedding March.

A young girl who had never heard of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," but was familiar with the more popular parody on it, was a witness to a wedding ceremony in an uptown church recently. As the betrothed pair walked with dignified tread toward the altar to be wed and the organ pealed forth Mendelssohn's inspiring march, the young girl was plainly shocked. When she arrived at her home she told her mother of the ceremoney and innocently exclaimed: "What do you think, mother, they played 'Gee Whiz! I'm glad I'm Free.'"

EDITOR BROWNE
Of The Rockford Morning Star.

"About seven years ago I ceased drinking coffee to give your Postum a trial.

"I had suffered acutely from various forms of indigestion and my stomach had become so disordered as to repel almost every sort of substantial food. My general health was bad. At close intervals I would suffer severe attacks which confined me in bed for a week or more. Soon after changing from coffee to Postum the indigestion abated, and in a short time ceased entirely. I have continued the daily use of your excellent Food Drink and assure you most cordially that I am indebted to you for the relief it has brought me.

"Wishing you a continued success, I am Yours very truly,
J. Stanley Browne,
Managing Editor."

Of course, when a man's health shows he can stand coffee without trouble, let him drink it, but most highly organized brain-workers simply cannot.

The drugs natural to the coffee berry affect the stomach and other organs and thence to the complex nervous system, throwing it out of balance and producing disorders in various parts of the body. Keep up this daily poisoning and serious disease generally supervenes. So when man or woman finds that coffee is a smooth but deadly enemy and health is of any value at all, there is but one road—quit.

It is easy to find out if coffee be the cause of the troubles, for if left off 10 days and Postum be used in its place and the sick and diseased conditions begin to disappear, the proof is unanswerable.

Postum is not good if made by short boiling. It must be boiled full 15 minutes after boiling begins, when the crisp flavor and the food elements are brought out of the grains and the beverage is ready to fulfill its mission of palatable comfort and renewing the cells and nerve centers broken down by coffee.

UNCLE HIRAM TO HIS NEPHEW

On Something Important for Him to Realize in His Relations With Men.

"Stevey, my boy," said Uncle Hiram to his hopeful young nephew, "you may not be old enough yet fully to understand or at least fully to realize what I am about to say to you, but I'd better say it now for I might forget to say it later, and some day, and perhaps to your advantage, you will recall it, the thing I would now say to you being this:

"Other people think of us what we think of them.

"Do you get that through your noddle? Other people think of us what we think of them.

"This is highly important, because it applies to our inmost unuttered thoughts. If we think ill of a man he will think ill of us. So you want to think well of men.

"Our thoughts of other people appear to form a sort of circuit returning from them to us. They go out from us to the fellow we are thinking of, who seems to relay them back to us. Whatever our feelings toward him may be, good or bad, he takes them in, reinforces them with strength from his own batteries and sends them back to us, with a feeling of friendliness if that was our instinctive feeling toward him, while if our feeling was one of antagonism that is the feeling that he relays back to us.

"Don't think ill of men, Stephen; think well of them, as you may well do; there is more good in men than bad. Cultivate friendly relations and friendly feelings, and be sure that as you feel toward men so will they feel toward you."

NATURAL HISTORY OF JOKES

Originally Twenty-Five in Number, They Were Imported to This Country From the Orient.

Jokes were first imported to this country several hundred years ago from Egypt, Babylon and Assyria, and have since then grown and multiplied. They are in extensive use in all parts of the country, and an antidote for thoughts are indispensable at all dinner parties.

There were originally 25 jokes, but when this country was formed they added a constitution, which increased the number to 26. These jokes have married and intermarried among themselves and their children travel from press to press.

Frequently in one week a joke will travel from New York to San Francisco.

The joke is no respecter of persons. Shameless and unconcerned, he tells the story of his life over and over again. Outside of the ballot box he is the greatest repeater that we have.

Jokes are of three kinds—plain, illustrated and pointless. Frequently they are all three.

No joke is without honor, except in its own country. Jokes form one of four staples and employ an army of workers who toil night and day to turn out the often neatly finished product. The importation of jokes, while considerable, is not as great as it might be, as the flavor is lost in transit.

Jokes are used in the household as an antiseptic. As scene breakers they have no equal.—Life.

FEATHER FOR CAP OF TEXAS

Unclaimed Package From That State Sells for More Than Any Other, Says the Auctioneer.

"If Texas has room for any more feathers in her cap here is one she is entitled to wear," said the unclaimed baggage auctioneer. "In this lottery a trunk or suitcase that is stamped 'Texas,' or with the name of any town that is known to be in Texas, has its value doubled and trebled in the estimation of bidders. Among people who frequent these sales the opinion prevails that luggage that has been deserted by a Texan contains property of greater value than that belonging to a man from any other part of the United States. Baggage comes into this room with its contents absolutely unknown, and goes out that way, so the auctioneer has no means of knowing whether Texas bargains sustain their reputation, but the way people fight for them year after year indicate that they do.

"After Texas Ohio baggage is most popular. New York hasn't much to brag about in these grab-bag sales. The initials "N. Y." on a trunk did not boost its value one cent. Apparently bidders are of the opinion that no New Yorker is going to skip out leaving anything of value behind him, and they refuse to grow enthusiastic over his baggage."

Architects War on Skyscrapers.

The Pittsburg Architectural club is anxious that Pittsburg's sky-line in the future shall not resemble a comb which has been in use for many years; that is, a comb from which many teeth have departed, leaving it very irregular and broken up. The Architectural club believes that a sky-line can become congested just the same as a street. Tall buildings cause this new kind of congestion and instead of adding to the city's beauty have a contrary effect.

The club has declared war on sky-scrapers. Resolutions recommending that a city ordinance be passed regulating the height of all buildings in proportion to the width and importance of the streets on which they face have been adopted. The architects declare that they appreciate the efforts now being made by the city officials toward beautifying Pittsburg and relieving congestion in the city streets, but, in the opinion of the club, tall office buildings are detrimental to this project.

Just Cause for Anger.

"Mrs. Tinmore is so angry with her dentist she vows she never will pay his bill," says the neighbor.

"Why in the world?" asks the caller.

"Well, she got him to put in a bridge for her and she complained to him that it did not feel right, but he said it was all right and would not be noticed when she got used to it; and so she kept it, of course, although it seemed to make it hard for her to talk—kind of made her voice thick, you know. And yesterday she called up Mr. Tinmore and asked him to bring home some shoes and shirts for their little boys, and Mr. Tinmore kept her repeating it over and over to him the longest time, until he thought he knew what she wanted. And what do you suppose he brought home? A bottle of soothing syrup."—Judge.

Not From Dublin.

A squad of raw recruits was being drilled by an irritable drill sergeant. The command "Double!" was given, and all the men obeyed with the exception of one, who remained standing still and gazing vacantly around.

"My man, you don't seem to know anythin' about 'doublin'," roared the irate sergeant.

A gleam of comprehension passed over the face of the recruit, as he replied:

"No, sir; I'm a Cork man."—Tit-Bits.

TRAGEDY OF THE DEEP SEA

Old Aaron Bentsen, Sailmaker of Bark Friedig, Fell Dead as He Talked of Christmas in Port.

Two barks flying the flag of Norway sailed into the offing of Stapleton, dropped anchor and shook out their top-gallant sails to dry. One was the little Freidig, coffee carrier from Java and Sumatra, and the other the Fortuna from Madagascar.

In the last days of November the Freidig found herself 250 miles to the northwestward of Bermuda, with the pleasant prospect of celebrating Christmas in New York. This was especially pleasing to old Aaron Bentsen, the sailmaker, who said: "At New York I shall have letters from the wife and my two boys." The sailmaker's home was in Grimstad, Norway.

At this point in her trip the Freidig had to lie head to the winds, which came stronger and stronger. They grew into heavy gales, which rolled over the deeply laden coffee carrier day after day.

On the third day of the gale old Aaron, at mess with his shipmates in the forecastle, was smoking his pipe, and said: "Yes, before Christmas we shall be in New York, and then I shall get my mail from Grimstad, and there will be some gifts from the wife and the boys.'

As he uttered the words he fell off the bench dead.

He was buried at sea next day while the ship was still rolling and taking the heaps of green and white over her. The captain read the Lutheran service while the crew hung onto lifelines.—New York World.

SIGNBOARDS ON THE SHOPS

Rich Display of Painted and Sculptured Emblems Relieved Mean Appearance of Old Boston's Streets.

The mean appearance of the houses of old Boston (1784) was, to some extent, relieved by the rich display of painted and sculptured signs which adorned the front of the taverns and stores. The numbering of shops and houses had not come into fashion, and every business street was an endless succession of golden balls, of blue gloves, of crowns and scepters, dogs and rainbows, elephants and horse-shoes. They served sometimes as advertisements of the business, sometimes merely as designations of the shops which were indicated popularly and in the newspapers by their signs. The custom still lingers among the glovemakers, bootmakers, opticians, furriers and barbers. But we are accustomed now to regard the sign as bearing a direct relation to the character of the business it advertises. We should never seek for eyeglasses in a shop over whose entrance hangs a gilt boot, nor inquire for gloves in a shop before whose door stands an Indian in war paint and feathers. One hundred years ago no such relation was understood to exist and it was not thought remarkable that Phillip Freeman should keep his famous book store at the famous "Blue Glove" on Union street.—From McMaster's History of the American People.

Love Your Enemies.

There is an injunction in the Bible that is often laughed at, and that is, "Love your enemies." It is thought to be so impracticable and transcendental as to be beyond the very dream of human nature. And yet, there is no axiom sounder than that injunction. It is the very logic of good sense. Think over the fruits of hatred and see if there is one that you like. Think over the fruits of love and see if you don't like them all. The power of love is as definite and calculable as the power of steam or of electricity.

An argument based on hatred is never an argument. One can never hold a correct opinion of another unless he loves him. He can never see the truth through the eyes of hate. He might as well try to see the white light through a green glass. Love is not simply a good-goody sentiment; it is a reality as big as the atmosphere or the sun. What there is of it, our civilization is based on. If we lose it, humanity would disappear like the pythons and megatheriums of old.

Old Custom Maintained.

One of the peculiarities of the average Englishman is that he loves to perpetuate the quaint custome of his forefathers. The will has just been proved at £144,631 of Sir Henry Tichborne, of Tichborne Park, Hants, over whose succession to the Tichborne estates and title the famous Tichborne case was fought. A curious provision in the will is that in which Sir Henry desired that the family custom should be continued of distributing a small silver coin to every person present at the funeral of a member of the family, one coin for every year of age of deceased. The custom also includes the distribution of 54 quartern loaves to the poor of the district.

Parisian Chief of Festivities.

The Indian potentate, the Maharajah of Kapurthala, who married a beautiful Spanish dancing girl and is the most Parisian of the Eastern princes, has invited Andre de Fouquieres to direct the grand court ball the Maharajah will give in his capital for the wedding of his son with an Indian princess. Fouquieres has accepted this invitation and he will lead the cotillon. This will be the longest journey the famous Parisian Beau Brummel has undertaken for such a purpose.

BARN DOOR WORTH SAVING

Farmer Dockridge Rescued It From the Flames, for It Bore His Accounts for Six Years.

Farmer Dockridge was hastily awakened in the dead of night by Alf, the farm servant, who told him the barn was on fire. Instructing Alf to blindfold the horses and lead them out through the back door if there was time enough, he hurriedly donned his trousers, rushed into the kitchen, grabbed up a screw driver and ran out to the barn.

The roof was burning fiercely, but he dashed into the building and began with frantic haste to unscrew the hinges of the smooth pine door that opened into the corn bin.

Alf had succeeded in getting the horses out safely, and the sparks were falling round the old man, but he stuck to his task until he had finished it, and emerged from the burning barn carrying the door just as the roof fell in.

"That's a good deal of risk to take for the sake of saving a bit of firewood," commented a neighbor who had been awakened by the flames and had run over to see if he could be of any use.

"Firewood!" exclaimed Farmer Dockridge, pointing to the pencil marks that covered the door. "See them figgers? There's all my business accounts for the last six years. That door's worth more than the whole barn!"—London Telegraph.

SPEAKING VOICE IMPORTANT

When Its Correct Use Has Been Learned the Development of the Singer Is Easier.

Few singers, students, or even teachers of singing, pay enough attention to the speaking voice. The teacher and his pupil are together so little—a brief half-hour or two each week—and there are so many things demanding attention that there seems almost no time for consideration of the speaking voice. Yet consistency demands that a bad habit of voice use in speech shall be corrected so that the use of the voice in conversation shall not retard the perfection of the singing voice.

I am often asked if the process of tone production is the same in speaking and singing. I answer that it should be the same. When the voice is correctly used in speech it will require not different, but merely amplified treatment for singing. Unquestionably the young person who has a correct use of voice in speech will find it less difficult to develop a good singing voice, than one who has an incorrect habit.

Deep breath control, pliable organs of articulation, and full, or complete, vowel pronunciation, are the fundamental requisites of correct speech and correct singing alike. When the speaking voice of a singer is not so produced, its use in conversation is sure to retard the perfection of the singing tone.

Dog's Faithfulness.

The story of a dog's fidelity was told when the coroner for North Westmoreland (Eng.) held an inquest on the body of William Wharton, a Westmoreland old age pensioner, who dropped down dead after recording his vote in the Parliamentary election. Wharton, who lived alone at Shap, walked to Morland to vote, and set off home again late at night. Next morning half a dozen woodmen found the body by the roadside in a gutter. The old man's dog was lying over the body and guarding it. The body had lain there all the night in stormy weather. Information was given to the police, but when an attempt was made to touch the body the dog became so ferocious that no one dared go near it, and before the dead man could be removed the officers had to send for the old man's neighbor, who knew the dog, and succeeded in coaxing it to quietness.

The Siamese Cat.

Siamese cats, with their curious markings and loud, discordant voices, are favorite pets.

In many respects these animals of Siamese breed are unique among felines. They follow their owners like dogs; they are exceedingly affectionate and insist upon attention, and they mew loudly and constantly, as if trying to talk. They have more vivacity and less dignity than usually falls to the lot of cats.

In color they vary from pale fawn through shades of brown to chocolate. There are two varieties, the temple cats and the palace cats, the principal difference between the two being that the palace breed is darker in color.

A Few Words on Loafing.

Don't loaf. Idleness is the root of much evil, and uncheerfulness is one of the shoots from the root. There is no such thing as idleness in nature. The worlds that glitter in the arch of the heavens are ever moving. The moon never stays in one place. The restless sea moans in and out over the harbor bar. The rivers gurgle and splash as they journey to the sea. The trees change their costumes twice a year, and grow a little throughout most of the year. The birds never roost at noonday, and man is the only animal who oversleeps himself.

Quite in Keeping.

"Queer, wasn't it? It was at the mouth of the river—"

"Yes?"

"We ran into the teeth of the gale."

The Story of a Famous Hymn.

The famous hymn beginning "God moves in a mysterious way," known as "Cowper's Hymn," had its origin as follows: Cowper was all his life the victim of melancholia and more than once attempted suicide. One day, bent upon destroying himself, he got into a cab and ordered the driver to take him to a certain point on the river where he intended to drown himself. The cabman, noticing his strange appearance and feeling that all might not be right with him, drove him about the city and finally stopped in front of the poet's door. Stepping out and recognizing the old familiar surroundings and shocked at the thought of his narrow escape, Cowper exclaimed, "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," and, rushing in, immediately composed the immortal hymn.

The Man With a Cold.

The sympathy given to the man with a hard cold is purely perfunctory. We know, or at least we think we know, that he will not die. We know that he is thoroughly wretched, yet we are equally certain that in three days or so he will be coming upstairs two at a time.. This does not comfort him, though he may know it himself. He therefore feels himself an outcast, a pariah. He is cut off from the ordinary human relations. If he so much as kisses his wife or child he is a blackguard, mentally self convicted of it. Nobody loves him, and he may go out into the kitchen and drink cough sirup.—Boston Transcript.

Keeping the Actors Clean.

Some years ago, when playing in Leeds, I started a swimming competition among the members of my company and to encourage them offered as a prize a silver loving cup (won, by the way, by the late Edward Lonnen). The event apparently created some interest in the town, and a friend heard two men engage in a discussion as follows:

First Man—I say, durst to know this 'ere Terry's given a coop to bes' swimmer i' company?

Second Man—Aye. What's that for?

First Man—Oh, I suppose it's to keep them play actors clean.—Edward Terry in Era Annual.

Not "a Royal Maggot."

I a royal maggot! I am a soldier, I come from the people, I have made myself! Am I to be compared with Louis XVI.? I listen to everybody, but my own mind is my only counselor. There are some men who have done France more harm than the wildest revolutionaries—the talkers and the rationalists. Vague and false thinkers, a few lessons of geometry would do them good.—Napoleon (Quoted in "The Corsican").

A Fierce Night Alarm

is the hoarse startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chambin, of Manchester, O., [R. R. No. 2] for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Sometimes in severe attacks," he wrote "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. Asthma, Hay Fever, LaGrippe, Whooping Cough, Hemorrhages fly before it. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Sold by all druggists.

A Mother's Safeguard.

Attacks School Principal.

A severe attack on school principal Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. All remedies failed till I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." Such results are common. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 50c at all druggists.

"Foley's Honey and Tar is the best cough remedy I ever used as it quickly stopped a severe cough that had long troubled me," says J. W. Kuhn, Princeton, Nebr. Just so quickly and surely it acts in all cases of coughs, colds, lagrippe and lung trouble. Refuse substitutes. Sold by Emporium Drug Co.

When you have rheumatism in your foor or instep apply Chamberlain's Liniment and you get quick relief. It costs but a quarter. Why suffer? For sale by all dealers.

What Was the Good of Regrets?

The THIRD DEGREE

A NARRATIVE OF METROPOLITAN LIFE

By CHARLES KLEIN AND ARTHUR HORNBLOW

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY G.W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Howard Jeffries, banker's son, under the evil influence of Robert Underwood, a fellow-student at Yale, leads a life of dissipation, marries the daughter of a gambler who died in prison, and is disowned by his father. He tries to get work and fails. A former college chum makes a business proposition to Howard which requires $2,000 cash, and Howard is broke. Robert Underwood, who had been repulsed by Howard's wife, Annie, in his college days, and had once been engaged to Alicia, Howard's stepmother, has apartments at the Astruria, and is apparently in prosperous circumstances. Howard recalls a $250 loan to Underwood, that remains unpaid, and decides to ask him for the $2,000 he needs. Underwood, taking advantage of his intimacy with Mrs. Jeffries, Sr., becomes a sort of social highwayman. Discovering his true character she denies him the house. Alicia receives a note from Underwood, threatening suicide. She decides to go and see him. He is in desperate financial straits. Art dealers for whom he has been acting as commissioner, demand an accounting. He cannot make good. Howard Jeffries calls in an intoxicated condition. He asks Underwood for $2,000 and is told by the latter that he is in debt up to his eyes. Howard drinks himself into a maudlin condition, and goes to sleep on a divan. A caller is announced and Underwood draws a screen around the drunken sleeper. Alicia enters. She demands a promise from him that he will not take his life, pointing to the disgrace that would attach to herself. Underwood refuses to promise unless she will renew her patronage.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

"I don't believe you intend to carry out your threat. I should have known from the first that your object was to frighten me. The pistol display was highly theatrical, but it was only a bluff. You've no more idea of taking your life than I have of taking mine. I was foolish to come here. I might have spared myself the humiliation of this clandestine interview. Good-night!"

She went toward the door. Underwood made no attempt to follow her. In a hard, strange voice, which he scarcely recognized as his own, he merely said:

"Is that all you have to say?"

"Yes," replied Alicia, as she turned at the door. "Let it be thoroughly understood that your presence at my house is not desired. If you force yourself upon me in any way, you must take the consequences."

Underwood bowed, and was silent. She did not see the deathly pallor of his face. Opening the door of the apartment which led to the hall, she again turned.

"Tell me, before I go—you didn't mean what you said in your letter, did you?"

"I'll tell you nothing," replied Underwood doggedly.

She tossed her head scornfully.

"I don't believe that a man who is coward enough to write a letter like this has the courage to carry out his threat." Stuffing the letter back into her bag, she added: "I should have thrown it in the waste-paper basket, but on second thoughts, I think I'll keep it. Good-night."

"Good-night," echoed Underwood mechanically.

He watched her go down the long hallway and disappear in the elevator. Then, shutting the door, he came slowly back into the room and sat down at his desk. For ten minutes he sat there motionless, his head bent forward, every limb relaxed. There was deep silence, broken only by Howard's regular breathing and the loud ticking of the clock.

"It's all up," he muttered to himself. "It's no use battling against the tide. The strongest swimmer must go under some time. I've played my last card and I've lost. Death is better than going to jail. What good is life anyway without money? Just a moment's nerve and it will all be over."

Opening the drawer in the desk, he took out the revolver again. He turned it over in his hand and regarded fearfully the polished surface of the instrument that bridged life and death. He had completely forgotten Howard's presence in the room. On the threshold of a terrible deed, his thoughts were leagues away. Like a man who is drowning, and close to death, he saw with surprising distinctness a kaleidoscopic view of his past life. He saw himself an innocent, impulsive school boy, the pride of a devoted mother, the happy home where he spent his childhood. Then came the association with bad companions, the first step in wrongdoing, stealing out of a comrade's pocket in school, the death of his mother, leaving home—with downward progress until he gradually drifted into his present dishonest way of living. What was the good of regrets? He could not recall his mother to life. He could never rehabilitate himself among decent men and women. The world had suddenly become too small for him. He must go, and quickly.

Fingering the pistol nervously, he sat before the mirror and placed it against his temple. The cold steel gave him a sudden shock. He wondered if it would hurt, and if there would be instant oblivion. The glare of the electric light in the room disconcerted him. It occurred to him that it would be easier in the dark. Reaching out his arm, he turned the electric button, and the room was immediately plunged into darkness, except for the moonlight which entered through the windows, imparting a ghostly aspect to the scene. On the other side of the room, behind the screen, a red glow from the open fire fell on the sleeping form of Howard Jeffries.

Slowly, deliberately, Underwood raised the pistol to his temple and fired.

CHAPTER VIII.

"Hello! What's that?"

Startled out of his Gargantuan slumber by the revolver's loud report, Howard sat up with a jump and rubbed his eyes. On the other side of the screen, concealed from his observation, there was a heavy crash of a body falling with a chair—then all was quiet.

Scared, not knowing where he was, Howard jumped to his feet. For a moment he stood still, trying to collect his senses. It was too dark to discern anything plainly, but he could dimly make out outlines of aesthetic furniture and bibelots. Ah, he remembered now! He was in Underwood's apartment.

Rubbing his eyes, he tried to recall how he came there, and slowly his befuddled brain began to work. He remembered that he needed $2,000, and that he had called on Robert Underwood to try and borrow the money. Yes, he recalled that perfectly well. Then he and Underwood got drinking and talking, and he had fallen asleep. He thought he had heard a woman's voice—a voice he knew. Perhaps that was only a dream. He must have been asleep some time, because the lights were out and, seemingly, everybody had gone to bed. He wondered what the noise which started him could have been. Suddenly he heard a groan. He listened intently, but all was still. The silence was uncanny.

Now thoroughly frightened, Howard cautiously groped his way about, trying to find the electric button. He had no idea what time it was. It must be very late. What an ass he was to drink so much! He wondered what Annie would say when he didn't return. He was a hound to let her sit up and worry like that. Well, this would be a lesson to him—it was the last time he'd ever touch a drop. Of course, he had promised her the same thing a hundred times before, but this time he meant it. His drinking was always getting him into some fool scrape or other.

He was gradually working his way along the room, when suddenly he stumbled over something on the floor. It was a man lying prostrate. Stooping, he recognized the figure.

"Why—it's Underwood!" he exclaimed.

At first he believed his classmate was asleep, yet considered it strange that he should have selected so uncomfortable a place. Then it occurred to him that he might be ill. Shaking him by the shoulder, he cried:

"Hey, Underwood, what's the matter?"

No response came from the prostrate figure. Howard stooped lower, to see better, and accidentally touching Underwood's face, found it clammy and wet. He held his hand up in the moonlight and saw that it was covered with blood. Horror-stricken, he cried:

"My God! He's bleeding—he's hurt!"

What had happened? An accident—or worse? Quickly he felt the man's pulse. It had ceased to beat. Underwood was dead.

For a moment Howard was too much overcome by his discovery to know what to think or do. What dreadful tragedy could have happened? Carefully groping along the mantelpiece, he at last found the electric button and turned on the light. There, stretched out on the floor, lay Underwood, with a bullet hole in his left temple, from which blood had flowed freely down on his full-dress shirt. It was a ghastly sight. The man's white, set face, covered with a crimson stream, made a repulsive spectacle. On the floor near the body was a highly polished revolver, still smoking.

Howard's first supposition was that burglars had entered the place and that Underwood had been killed while defending his property. He remembered now that in his drunken sleep he had heard voices in angry altercation. Yet why hadn't he called for assistance? Perhaps he had and he hadn't heard him.

He looked at the clock, and was surprised to find it was not yet midnight. He believed it was at least five o'clock in the morning. It was evident that Underwood had never gone to bed. The shooting had occurred either while the angry dispute was going on or after the unknown visitor had departed. The barrel of the revolver was still warm, showing that it could only have been discharged a few moments before. Suddenly it flashed upon him that Underwood might have committed suicide.

But it was useless to stand there theorizing. Something must be done. He must alarm the hotel people or call the police. He felt himself turn hot and cold by turn as he realized the serious predicament in which he himself was placed. If he aroused the hotel people they would find him here alone with a dead man. Suspicion would at once be directed at him, and it might be very difficult for him to establish his innocence. Who would believe that he could have fallen asleep in a bed while a man killed himself in the same room? It sounded preposterous. The wisest course for him would be to get away before anybody came.

Quickly he picked up his hat and made for the door. Just as he was about to lay hand on the handle there was the click of a latchkey. Thus headed off, and not knowing what to do, he halted in painful suspense. The door opened and a man entered.

He looked as surprised to see Howard as the latter was to see him. He was clean-shaven and neatly dressed, yet did not look the gentleman. His appearance was rather that of a servant. All these details flashed before Howard's mind before he blurted out:

"Who the devil are you?"

The man looked astonished at the question and eyed his interlocutor closely, as if in doubt as to his identity. In a cockney accent he said loftily:

"I am Ferris, Mr. Underwood's man, sir." Suspiciously, he added: "Are you a friend of Mr. Underwood's, sir?"

He might well ask the question, for Howard's disheveled appearance and ghastly face, still distorted by terror, was anything but reassuring. Taken by surprise, Howard did not know what to say, and like most people questioned at a disadvantage, he answered foolishly:

"Matter? No. What makes you think anything is the matter?"

Brushing past the man, he added: "It's late. I'm going."

"Stop a minute!" cried the man servant. There was something in Howard's manner that he did not like. Passing quickly into the sitting room, he called out: "Stop a minute!" But Howard did not stop. Terror gave him wings and, without waiting for the elevator, he was already half way down the first staircase when he heard shouts behind him.

"Murder! Stop thief! Stop that man! Stop that man!"

There was a rush of feet and hum of voices, which made Howard run all the faster. He leaped down four steps at a time in his anxiety to get away. But it was no easy matter descending so many flights of stairs. It took him several minutes to reach the main floor.

By this time the whole hotel was aroused. Telephone calls had quickly warned the attendants, who had promptly sent for the police. By the time Howard reached the main entrance he was intercepted by a mob too numerous to resist.

Things certainly looked black for him. As he sat, white and trembling, under guard in a corner of the entrance hall, waiting for the arrival of the police, the valet breathlessly gave the sensational particulars to the rapidly growing crowd of curious onlookers. He had taken his usual Sunday out and on returning home at midnight, as was his custom, he had let himself in with his latchkey. To his astonishment he had found this man, the prisoner, about to leave the premises. His manner and remarks were so peculiar that they at once aroused his suspicion. He hurried into the apartment and found his master lying dead on the floor in a pool of blood. In his hurry the assassin had dropped his revolver, which was lying near the corpse. As far as he could see, nothing had been taken from the apartment. Evidently the man was disturbed at his work and, when suddenly surprised, had made the bluff that he was calling on Mr. Underwood. They had got the right man, that was certain. He was caught red-handed, and in proof of what he said, the valet pointed to Howard's right hand, which was still covered with blood.

"How terrible!" exclaimed a woman bystander, averting her face. "So young, too!"

"It's all a mistake, I tell you. It's all a mistake," cried Howard, almost panic-stricken. "I'm a friend of Mr. Underwood's."

"Nice friend!" sneered an onlooker.

"Tell that to the police," laughed another.

"Or to the marines!" cried a third.

"It's the chair for his'n!" opined a fourth.

By this time the main entrance hall was crowded with people, tenants and passersby attracted by the unwonted commotion. A scandal in high life is always caviare to the sensation seeker. Everybody excitedly inquired of his neighbor:

"What is it? What's the matter?"

Presently the rattle of wheels was heard and a heavy vehicle driven furiously, drew up at the sidewalk with a jerk. It was the police patrol wagon, and in it were the captain of the precinct and a half dozen policemen and detectives. The crowd pushed forward to get a better view of the burly representatives of the law as, full of authority, they elbowed their way unceremoniously through the throng. Pointing to the leader, a big man in plain clothes, with a square, determined jaw and a bulldog face, they whispered one to another:

"That's Capt. Clinton, chief of the precinct. He's a terror. It'll go hard with any prisoner he gets in his clutches!"

Followed by his uniformed myrmidons, the police official pushed his way to the corner where sat Howard, dazed and trembling, and still guarded by the valet and elevator boys.

"What's the matter here?" demanded the captain gruffly, and looking from Ferris to the white-faced Howard. The valet eagerly told his story:

"I came home at midnight, sir, and found my master, Mr. Robert Underwood, lying dead in the apartment, shot through the head." Pointing to Howard, he added: "This man was in the apartment trying to get away. You see his hand is still covered with blood."

Capt. Clinton chuckled, and expanding his mighty chest to its fullest, licked his chops with satisfaction. This was the opportunity he had been looking for—a sensational murder in a big apartment hotel, right in the very heart of his precinct! Nothing could be more to his liking. It was a rich man's murder, the best kind to attract attention to himself. The sensational newspapers would be full of the case. They would print columns of stuff every day, together with his portrait. That was just the kind of publicity he needed now that he was wire-pulling for an inspectorship. They had caught the man "with the goods"—that was very clear. He promised himself to attend to the rest. Conviction was what he was after. He'd see that no tricky lawyer got the best of him. Concealing, as well as he could, his satisfaction, he drew himself up and, with blustering show of authority, immediately took command of the situation. Turning to a police sergeant at his side, he said:

"Maloney, this fellow may have had an accomplice. Take four officers and watch every exit from the hotel. Arrest anybody attempting to leave the building. Put two officers to watch the fire escapes. Send one man on the roof. Go!"

"Yes, sir," replied the sergeant, as he turned away to execute the order.

Capt. Clinton gave two strides forward, and catching Howard by the collar, jerked him to his feet.

"Now, young feller, you come with me! We'll go upstairs and have a look at the dead man."

Jim had been far from a good boy during the day and toward nightfall he realized the fact fully. Being well acquainted with the workings of family discipline, he assayed a little diplomacy.

"Shall you tell father about me?" he inquired of his mother.

"Certainly I shall tell him," responded his mother, with sorrowful firmness.

"Shall you tell him before dinner or after dinner?" asked the culprit.

"After dinner," was the announcement.

"Mother," and Jim gave a wiggle of anticipation, "couldn't you have a blueberry pudding for his dessert? Couldn't you do that much for me, mother?"—Youth's Companion.

WHERE FALSE HAIR COMES FROM

(Copyright by Pearson Pub. Co.)

"I LOVE your hair!" he said. And Helene Gast smiled content. "Shake down your splendid hair," the lover said. "The sun will light it glorious!" In lazy happiness the Alpine village girl took out four pins, threw back her head, and gave a shake; down came the rippling, billowing cascade.

Exultant, he who seemed but a dull Dauphinois peasant, without poetry or esthetics, spread the massive ash-blond tresses for the sun to strike fire and gay gilt reflects from them.

"I love your hair, Helene," he said, and he said true. But in his heart he dreamed: "I might get eight hundred francs for it, if I could bluff that Paris buyer!"

One hair was bought only by the hair-lacking. The old, easy-going hair-buyer, half a peddler, went through Brittany, the Limousin and the Correze with a stock of gay shawls, parasols and umbrellas, and by throwing a gold-piece here and there he could pick up the standard shades and qualities from poor girls who were ignorant or hopeless.

At present false hair unashamed gaily confessed, is rampant on heads beautifully endowed by nature. The vast hats of two years required great quantities of puffing to frame the face beneath them. And now that rich woman of America and Europe seem confirmed in the craze of matching their own splendid tresses, to pile hair on hair, in great coiffures with large hats, small hats or no hats at all, the price of standard qualities has quadrupled; fancy hair attains extraordinary prices. Paris hairdressers rejoice in this new style buyer.

Such a one had come to Saint Martin d'Uriage. He was scouring all Savoy and Dauphiny, but to nine peasant girls in ten he remained the peddler out of whom good money might be luckily extorted for long and wavy heads of hair, in standard browns, blacks, pale blonds and red blonds. It was his rich dealings with the tenth girl that sent them fluttering, and all the more because the recent prize-winner had been Mere Grivonne, aged sixty-seven, but still lively in wind and limb. After a week of dickering, the buyer had given her sixty dollars in bright ten-franc gold pieces, and clipped—what no one on the mountain-side had noticed she possessed—a heavy head of silvery white hair of the rarest tint and quality.

The buyer, boarding with Monbelun, the miller, was going over his stock and his correspondance. The Paris wholesale house for which he traveled in connection with the most expensive of the world's hair-dressers urged by mail and telegram for hair, more hair!

Hair for twists and turbans! The era of frizettes and chichis has passed. No more does milady stick a dozen little puffs around her head. Do you remember how she used to sit pensive? You thought she was dreaming of you, but she was only wondering if her frizettes were coming out. Her present alert confidence is due to the knowledge that her immense false twist is surely tight. Wound round and round, it makes the whole back of her present low coiffure.

Hair for wigs! The ultrafashionables pull their own beautiful hair back and wind it tight. On with the wig! Is it because they have not very lovely hair of their own? Undeceive yourself. They have enough, but they want more. The new flat coiffures may look simple; but the great turbans demand long, thick hair. Moreover, the beauty of the effect depends on unmussed smoothness, hard to attain day by day. Our women have the habit of false hair. The present style is suited to the wig. The wig is always smooth and smart. On with the wig!

The automobile was the first pretext for wigs. Speed and dust will cut and dirty Madame's precious locks, and the wind breaks down the undulations of the hot irons. Women who can not stand severely flat effects cling to their swelling Marcelle waves upon the sides. Now, you can run the hot iron through false undulations without injuring your precious hair; whence transformations.

If the foundation of a wig is like a cap, that transformation is a mere band. See the fair one putting on her transformation! Fresh from the hot iron, waving splendidly, it is a crown of up-swelling tresses. Delicately she crowns herself with it. Upwards she smooths its rising wavelets, mixing them slightly with her own hair, underneath to where they meet at the crown, and then the big false braid conceals the meeting.

Hair! More hair!

The buyer going over stock and correspondence saw that he must shear what girls he could on market day, and quit Saint Martin d'Uriage for a more ignorant locality. His Paris house was selling long torsades of standard blond and brunette at $18 apiece, and the hair to make them was averaging $12. Transformations of the same tints and quality were selling at between $25 and 50. Wigs were selling at between $40 and $60 per kilo. Yet here were girls with less than half a kilo on their heads refusing to be shorn for less than $30. Do not be surprised at these figures. They are moderate—for "live" hair cut from vigorous European girls. The cheap article is brittle from strong chemical treatment—and dead Chinese women! Half the present false hair comes from China.

Some comes from an island in the Caribbean sea where the most malignant leprosy cases are sent by the Cuban authorities. A little while ago the head of the glove department of a New Yorw department store purchased a switch in the false hair department. Within two weeks from the time she began to wear the switch the upper part of her body was attacked with a disease which several doctors after consultation pronounced to be leprosy.

Cheap false hair is dangerous. It all comes from Indian and Chinese people. If you must have false hair, see to it that it is live hair. It will cost more, but it's safe. It is said that there are three qualities of hair in the market: fine soft hair, cut from the heads of live white girls, cheap hair that comes from dead women of other races, and still cheaper which is made into so-called "rats" and is said to derive its being mostly from different kinds of animals and to be "filthy, beastly stuff."

"I will put a notice in the "Place" that I am quitting Saint Martin d'Uriage after next market day," he said to Monzelun, the miller. "The young men are standing in their own light not to order their own girls to come up and get their money!"

"The young men are willing to sell," replied the miller, "but they yearn for better prices. A poor girl's hair is her marriage portion; but at the rates you offer, it is as safe on her head. You can always walk down to Grenoble and sell it at need; and meanwhile more liberal buyers may happen along. Our young men know that hair is gone up."

"A little knowledge is a dangerous thing," the buyer anskered. "Because I have have given heavy prices for a few rare heads, they must not think that common hair is scarce. In the next village I will find twenty marriageable girls who are willing to trade off their useless locks for the price of a young donkey."

He knew the miller would retail his talk on market day. The miller in these remote centers is the general exchange. Incoming peasants bring their bag of grist to him across the donkey's back, take home a third in flour, and trade the rest. Not twice a year do they go to Grenoble, twenty miles down and back, up the innumerable steep lacets of the mountain side. They fear the city's unknown ways. The buyer knew this when he added:

"As for the girls selling at Grenoble, why, we send hair to Grenoble ready made up!"

But the buyer would not leave Saint Martin d'Uriage without a certain treasure.

"Our client is a millionaire Americaine," the great hair-dresser wrote. "We can offer you one hundred per cent on the lowest price you have to pay in case you succeed; and as the lady has honored us with practically unlimited order, I will not conceal from you that I am giving this same commission to several buyers. You have carte blanche to match the sample."

Long the buyer had been waiting for a certain young man to come to him.

Now the young man, having seen the miller, happened to stroll by.

"Have you the cutting?" questioned the buyer.

"No," the young man answered. "I refuse to ask her for it till I know your price. I will not wound her feelings uselessly. I will not sell my girl's hair for a trifle. Put on stamped paper that you will give $160 and I will see about it. Don't forget that my girl's hair is naturally wavy."

"Absurd!" cried the buyer. "Here, I will tell you the whole truth. "All depends on the matching. If your girl's hair does not match my sample absolutely, natural waviness will add—yes, say $20, to fine ash-blond hair—say three-quarters of a kilo; why, $20 is a ridiculously high valuation, but I will write down on stamped paper that I will pay $100 in case the sample matches."

Georges shook his head.

"One hundred and ten dollars—I can not do better."

Negation. The young man did love her hair.

"One hundred and twenty dollars in case the sample matches."

And love conquered—love of donkeys, heifers, goats, lambs, turkeys, chickens.

"Write it down plain," said the young man,, who also loved his girl's tresses. Then, when he had the paper safely in his pocket, he added:

"Now write what you will give in case the sample does not match."

Next market day at Saint Martin d'Uriage four girls stood with their splendid hair down around the stone bench opposite the mill.

"Be seated." The radiant buyer motioned to two of them.

He put their arms through the sleeves of a barber's apron, over which, around his shoulders, he tied a black muslin cape. Ostensibly it was to help him cut. In truth it was to help him judge the hair's consistency of tint before he actually sheared it. But it looked uncanny, like the preparation of an execution.

The first girl went under comb and shears. Straight down the two sides of her head—so that each half fell over a shoulder—the man combed all her tresses, parted at the crown.

S-z-z-z-z—!

The shears made a long, continuous sound, no snipping—and in his left hand he held half the girl's hair.

S-z-z-z-z—!

The girl was sheared.

Next girl!

The next girl was Helene Gast.

You would not have dreamt that she wept all night. In lazy pride she took out four pins, threw her head back, gave a shake, and down came the rippling, wavy, billowing cascade. The sun struck fire and gave gold reflects from its ash-blond glory.

"Hair is such a bother," she laughed, bluffing bravely; "and the money is important. I hope Georges won't mind much when he learns what I am doing. He so loves my hair."

A Subtle Deduction.

"Ha!" exclaimed Sherlock Holmes, Jr. "That man is married. He has been married for more than two years."

"Do you know him?" asked Dr. Wharton.

"No. I never before saw him; but I heard him say a moment ago that he had forgotten all about St. Valentine's day until it was past."

Futile Aspirations.

Manager—I wish we could apply to deadheads the principle of trolley cars.

Rheumatism Advice

Gives Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription—Is Easily Mixed.

"Get one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound and one ounce of Toris compound. Then get half a pint of good whisky and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a tablespoonful of this mixture before each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle before using." This is not new in this city as many of the worse cases of rheumatism and back-ache have been cured by it. Good results come the first day. Any druggist has these ingredients on hand or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. Any one can mix them.

PROOF POSITIVE.

He—Oh, yes; I write verse occasionally—but I tear it all up as soon as I write it.

A Trained Nurse's Experiences with Resinol Ointment.

I applied Resinol to an ulcerated leg of six months' standing. Almost everything had been tried to heal it. Made two applications a day for four weeks and leg was permanently healed.

I have used Resinol on children's faces to heal eruptions and for everything that seemed to need an ointment with satisfactory results in every case.

A Helpless Invalid

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is, it would almost seem, to blame for her own wretchedness. Read what this woman says:

Richmond, Mo.—"When my second daughter was eighteen months old I was pronounced a hopeless invalid by specialists. I had a consultation of doctors and they said I had a severe case of ulceration. I was in bed for ten weeks, had sinking spells, and was pronounced to be in a dangerous condition. My father insisted that we try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought me six bottles. I soon began to improve, and before it had all been taken I was as well and strong as ever,—my friends hardly recognized me so great was the change."—Mrs. Woodson Branstetter, Richmond, Mo.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what another woman says:—

Jonesboro, Texas.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for myself and daughter, and consider it unequalled for all female diseases. I would not be without it for anything. I wish every mother in America could be persuaded to use it as there would be less suffering among our sex then. I am always glad to speak a word of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you are at liberty to use this testimonial."—Mrs. James T. Lawrence, Jonesboro, Texas.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice—it is free and always helpful.

MILD, GENTLE LAXATIVE

FOR WOMEN GIVEN FREE

So many of the ills of women are due to habitual constipation, probably because of their false modesty on the subject, that their attention cannot be too strongly called to the importance of keeping the bowels open. It is always important to do that, regardless of the sex, but it is especially important in women.

From the time the girl begins to menstruate until menstruation ceases she has always vastly better prospects of coming through healthy if she watches her bowel movements. If you find yourself constipated, with bad breath, pimply complexion, headaches, belching gas and other symptoms of indigestion and constipation, take a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a woman's favorite laxative. You will find that you can do away with salts, strong cathartics, etc., which are entirely unsuited to woman's requirements.

Mrs. Katherine Haberstroh of McKees Rocks, Pa., and Mrs. A. E. Herrick of Wheeler, Mich., who was almost paralyzed in her stomach and bowels, are now cured by the use of this remedy. A free sample bottle can be obtained by addressing Dr. Caldwell, and after you are convinced of its merits buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Guard The Young Girls.

In the suicide of the fifteen-year old girl who fled from her home at Chester, Pa., with a married man, and being tracked by the police, did the deed of desperation rather than submit to the mortification of returning home, is found the usual sequel. It is impossible to characterize the man, married and having a child, who deluded the young girl, taking from her the weak defenses of her sex and robbing her of all that should be the cherished possession of a young woman. A mere child, unversed in the ways of the world—albeit the world is too good in its ways to be guaged by its worst products—she was without the experience and the maturity of judgment to properly analyze the feelings that appeared to her to be sentiments of an altruistic devotion.

The fatal infatuatians of young girls, mere school children like this one—often chargeable to almost criminal negligence upon the part of a parent. A weak mother, taking pride in the physical attractions of her daughter, permits her to receive attentions that should not be tolerated. They have no right to suppose that the attentions of married men when made direct and personal are harmless. They have no right to permit a daughter's unfolding sentiments to be subject to attack by men who frequently are masters in the art of ensnaring young girls.

The absolute need for protection and warning from parents is indicated afresh in this case. It shows the folly of negligence in this regard and the danger of even passive attentions to a daughter by a man who could not possibly offer her the love of one who has the right to make an honorable suit. Certainly, girls of the tender age of the one who took her life in an Alexandria hotel should not be permitted to receive attentions from anyone. The psychology of the emotions of youth show that the sentiments engendered at such an age are wholly unreliable, and that they seldom afford the basis for a lasting affection such as alone can bring permanent happiness in the wedded life. So that young girls should not be subjected to influences that tend to unduly develop their sentimental natures and cloud their views as to matters of essential moment in the serious matter of receiving attention from the other sex. The ever sad sequel to a mispaced emotional alliance should have its warning for all parents of young girls, whether or not these show romantic leanings.

Throw out the Line

Give the Kidneys Help and Many Emporium People Will be Happier.

"Throw Out the Life Line"—

The kidneys need help.

They're overworked—can't get the poison filtered out of the blood.

There getting worse every minute.

Will you help them?

Doan's Kidney Pills have brought thousands of kidney sufferers back from the verge of despair.

Mrs. A. Extrom, Sixth St., Emporium, Pa., says: "I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, for they have done me a world of good. I suffered intensly from backache and pains through my kidneys and I was restless at night. Headaches and dizzy spells annoyed me and my feet often became swollen. Nothing gave me relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from Taggart's Drug Store. They proved to be just the remedy I needed and the contents of three or four boxes restored me to good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Company to Concede This.

In each and every case where Sexine Pills do not bring back your strength and steady nerves to any man or or woman who has used six boxes, the company will either give—without additional cost—six boxes more for more prolonged treatment, or will refund your five dollars. The company has being doing this for years and still does so, without quibble or red tape. Besides, they do not want you to hesitate to send in your claim if necessary. Dodson Drug Store, Emporium, Pa., endorses every word of this.

School Directors will be Elected This Fall.

Miss Mattie M. Collins, who has been our efficient Supt of public schools for five terms and conceded to be one of the best in the state, sends us the following relative to the election of school directors:

Office of the Attorney General,
Harrisburg, Pa., March 6, 1911.

Hon. Nathan C. Shaeffer,
Supt. of Public Instruction,
Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Sir:

By your favor of February 14th addressed to the Attorney General, you ask to be advised whether the election of school directors will hereafter be held in November and whether the director whose term of office expires in June 1911, will hold over.

The February election has of course, been abolished, and the November election in the year 1911 is the election appropriate to the election of school directors. The Act of Assembly, approved March 2, 1911, entitled,

"An Act to carry into complete operation the amendments to sections 8 and 21 of Article IV, Sections 11 and 12 of Article V, Sections 2 and 3 of Article VIII, Section I of Article XII, and Sections 2 and 7 of Article XIV, of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, adopted November second, one thousand nine hundred and nine, preventing any hiatus in the terms of offices affected thereby, fixing the time when the terms of certain offices shall hereafter begin validating the official acts of certain officers during their extended terms and defining the term 'public officer' as used in this Act," provides, in Section 1:

"That all public officers holding office at the date of the approval of said amendments not otherwise provided for, whose terms of office expire at any time during an odd numbered year, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January in the next even numbered year, and that all such officers whose terms expire in an even numbered year shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January in the next even numbered year."

The term "public officer" is defined in the Act to include "all officers elected by vote of the people, whether the offices that they fill, were created by the Constitution or by special or general Acts of Assembly.

This Act of Assembly answers your inquiry, and you are thereby advised that there will be no vacancy in the office of school directors in June, 1911.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) WM. M. HARGEST,
Assistant Deputy Attorney General

Do you know that of all the minor ailments colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the cold itself that you need to fear, but the serious disease that it often tends to. Most of these are known as germ diseases. Pneumonia and consumption are among them. Why not take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and cure your cold while you can? For sale by all dealers.

Japanese Logic.

A teacher of English in Japan recently gave as an examination question, "What is a ventilator?" Besides the number of answers that were approximately correct, there were two which indicated that the students must have been absent either in body or mind on the day when the schoolroom ventilator had been discussed. The first was, "The ventilator lives in the mountains;" the second, "Columbus was a great ventilator." When occasion offered the teacher reminded his class that attention and application are requisite for acquiring knowledge and seriously asked them why any one should have given an answer such as the one concerning Columbus. One of the best spokesmen in the class essayed an explanation somewhat as follows:

"Columbus brought new ideas back to the old world; he changed the current of thought and opened a great door into the new and outer world; therefore he was a great ventilator."—Youth's Companion.

Washing Your Hands.

When you go to the washstand and carefully wash your hands with a generous application of soap and hard brush do not think for an instant that your hands are clean. The tenacious microbe refuses to be disturbed and clings to the flesh throughout the whole operation. There are some chemical compounds which will dislodge the busy bacilli to a certain extent, but not entirely. According to the investigations of a medical authority of the Prussian army, the best results in the direction of giving the hands a sanitary cleaning are accomplished by the use of alcohol. A bath of pure alcohol will remove about 99 per cent of the germs. Where it is desired to clean the hands hygienically it is recommended that the hands be not first washed with water, for this will so adulterate the alcohol that it cannot accomplish its work as effectively as otherwise.

Spring Openings.

Our dry goods and millinery stores are certainly looking their best and are replete with a beautiful line of Easter attractions. Our readers need not go out of town to purchase goods for the spring and summer wear, in fact every lady in Cameron county should make it a point to visit Emporium and call on the three main establishments. The Misses Ludlam, Mrs. E. S. Coppersmith and Mr. R. Kuehne, who have all personally visited the best city houses, in Philadelphia, New York, Buffalo and Cleveland, being the principal centres of fashion and have carefully selected the most popular and stylish creations for millinery, dress goods, suits, coats, etc. Emporium can well boast of these stores and we highly recommend these dealers as they are highly dependable in every way. Call and see them; they will treat you right.

Avoid Frauds.

A paint fraud is paint that looks fair for a year or so, and then makes repainting necessary.

Don't waste your money and injure your property.

The L. & M. Paint has been in use for thirty-five years.

You make one-half of it by adding ¾ of a gallon of Linseed Oil to each gallon. It then costs about $1.60 per gallon, and is the best paint that can be made.

Foley Kidney Pills.

Just the right medicine for bachache, rheumatism, Bright's disease and all urinary irregularities. C. C. Mackey, 811 Locust St., Williamsport, Pa., says: "For the last two years I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney trouble. There were severe aching pains across my kidneys and back, my ankles pained me and were swollen up and I had shooting pains in my sides and other parts of the body. After taking five bottles of Foley Kidney Pills the pain in my back has vanished, the swelling in my ankles is gone and they are normal size and the shooting pains have been cured and I feel full of vitality and many years younger than before taking them. I cheerfully recommend Foley Kidney Pills. Sold by Emporium Drug Co.

John W. Sicklesmith, Greensboro, Pa., has three children, and like most childe ren they frequently take cold. "W- have tried several kinds of cough medi cine," he says, "but have never found any yet that did them as much good as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." For sale by all dealers.

Cards on Sunday.

Pepys, the diarist, was greatly scandalized when he first saw cards played on a Sunday. "I did find the queen, the Duchess of York and another at cards, with the room full of ladies and great men, which I was amazed to see on a Sunday, having not believed, but contrarily flatly denied the same a little while since."

Small Things.

We are too fond of our own will. We want to be doing what we fancy mighty things, but the great point is to do small things when called to them in a right spirit.

The Tank.

His System of Self Defense.

"Have you ever studied the art of self defense?" said a young fellow to a man of magnificent physique and noble bearing.

The elder man looked at his questioner with a quiet smile and then answered thoughtfully:

"Yes, I have studied and practiced it."

"Ah!" said the other eagerly. "Whose system did you adopt?"

"Solomon's," was the reply.

Somewhat abashed, the youth stammered out: "Solomon's? What is the special point of his system of training?"

"Briefly this," replied the other: "'A soft answer turneth away wrath.'"

For the moment the young man felt an inclination to laugh and looked at his friend anxiously to see whether he was serious. But a glance at the accomplished athlete was enough, and soon a very different set of feelings came over the youth as his muscular companion added, with silent emphasis, "Try it."—Christian Endeavor World.

The "Green Flash" at Sunset.

A correspondent writes that during the course of a voyage when midway between Marseilles and the strait of Bonifacio a "green flash" was seen at sunset. The sky was perfectly clear after a cloudless day, with little wind. As the sun approached the horizon the line 'twixt sea and sky for about forty-five degrees each side of the sun became suffused with a rich dull rose pink, and the waves reflected a marvelous ruby shade on their surfaces facing the sunset, while the other faces were an opalescent blue or green from the upper sky. The two colors flashed and changed in a marvelous way. Such intensity of coloring had never been seen by those on board. The sun set clean into the sea, and about ten (or less) seconds after it had disappeared a bright green single flash, just like a railway signal lamp, but brighter far, met our view and rewarded our watching for it.—Symons' Meteorological Magazine.

A Good Creed.

To be able to look every man squarely in the eyes; to make friends and hold them; to keep clean of mind and body; to smile at ill fortune; to laugh at my mistakes; to frown when temptation comes avisiting; to be ready with a word of cheer when that word will help; to strive to develop to the utmost the heart, head and hand qualities endowed by the Ruler over all; to hold all women in respect and to love one; to weave the thread of eternal optimism into the lives of all with whom I may come in contact; to worship nature and the Great Spirit that conceived it all—in a word, to play the game of life with a steady hand and a qualmless conscience and a real desire to be of service—that is my religion. And, say, if I can live up to the mark, don't you think I've corralled about all the creed that is necessary?—Backbone Monthly.

A Stream of Water.

A high pressure jet of water will bowl over a man as easily as a box of matches and leave him half stunned. It will even turn a bullet from its path. Experiments have shown that a jet of water can be produced at such a high pressure that it becomes practically a bar of iron. Swords have been blunted in attempting to cut through these extra high pressure jets. Some years ago an armed thief attempted to hold up a high official of the Bank of England in his private office. The official managed to get out of the room unharmed and locked the door. A resourceful attendant brought the fire hose. He opened the door sufficiently to insert the nozzle. In a few minutes the would be thief was picked up senseless.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Lion and the Lamb.

He was a gentleman of the old school—never mind his wrinkled brown skin and wrinkled brown clothes—and it was with the most distinguished politeness that he gave his order to the butcher man:

"De madam say please to cut her two lam' chops fum de lion, suh."

The butcher man jerked a loin from a hook, and his customer watched him cut into it. And a waiting woman said to herself:

"Addition forty-eleven to the literature of the lion and the lamb."—Washington Star.

His Denomination.

Dean de Moulin of Trinity cathedral told this bright little story during one of his delightful talks not long ago:

A man was asked to what religious denomination he belonged.

He thought it over.

"Why," he presently replied, "I believe it is the Episcopal church I stay away from."—Cleveland Plain Dealer

A Misinterpreted Question.

A young Canadian visited Washington one winter to spend the holidays with a pretty cousin and her family. As he was motoring with his pretty cousin one afternoon she said to him:

"Do you have reindeer in Canada?"

"No, darling," he answered quickly. "At this season it always snows."

He Wasn't Afraid.

When Bishop Phillips Brooks was "commanded," as the phrase goes, to speak before the queen some one asked if he was afraid. "No," he replied smiling; "I have preached before my mother."

Not Serious.

"Husband, I found a lock of hair among your old papers. I never gave it to you."

"You needn't worry. I don't remember who did."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Two Historic Drinks.

Sir Philip Sidney received his death wound before the walls of Zutphen on Sept. 22, 1586. Parched with thirst, he called for a drink. As he was putting the bottle to his mouth his eyes fell upon a desperately wounded soldier who as he was being carried past threw him longing glances, "which Sir Philip perceiving took the bottle from his lips before he drank and delivered to the poor man with these words: 'Thy necessity is greater than mine.'"

At the battle of Ravenna in 1512, when the allied Spanish and papal forces were defeated by the renowned Gaston de Foix, Dumolard, one of his captains, played a conspicuous part. After a gallant charge, by which he had driven back the enemy, he determined to publicly drink the health of his enemy's brave ally, Jacob von Empser, the leader of the 5,000 German lasquenets. Wine was brought upon the field, and, having sat down, each hero filled his goblet. At that moment, while they were in the very act of pledging each other's health, a cannon ball from the enemy's lines killed them both.

Quick and Cheap Legal Work.

The French tribunal of commerce is presided over by a judge without a jury. The plaintiff's lawyer argues his own case before the judge, simply to show that he has a case and the nature of it. The defendant does not plead, but if he can disputes the facts. If the judge considers there is no case he dismisses the plaintiff. In the contrary case he appoints an assessor out of a dozen chosen yearly of the town's reputed merchants to decide upon it. The following day the assessor calls the parties to his room in the court. He hears each of them separately without any lawyers. Within fifteen minutes he gathers their documents and dismisses them. Two or three days later he communicates his judgment to the solicitors through the court, and the business is ended. The costs of lawyers and the court fees come to about £6 a side. The same case in England would take six months at least and cost no less than £150 for a claim of £50.—London Mail.

When Bismarck Went Dry.

Bismarck was not without superstition, and this always was noticeable on the eve of the new year. From 9 o'clock that night until after midnight he would not take water in any circumstances from a glass. It was an ancient tradition in the chancellor's family that any one who set the legend at defiance would pass through a serious illness. If another tradition is true the observance of the family legend must have been a sore trouble to the iron chancellor, for the Paris contemporary from which we take the foregoing says that Bismarck not only loved war, but beer and wines, especially French wines. He was not averse to punch and grog, but on New Year's eve grog was under the ban, for it contains water.—London Globe.

Gambling In Wood.

"To most people my business would seem to be devoid of chances," said a dealer in fine woods, "yet as a matter of fact I know of nothing that is more of a gamble. On every log of wood we buy we take a chance that the inside is as good as the outside. At a recent auction of fine woods in London my partner and I paid $9,000 for a mahogany log that looked all right so far as we could tell. If the inside was sound we stood to make a good profit, but worm holes or rotten spots at the core would mean a heavy loss. Not until we got the log to this country and got it opened up could we be certain. As a matter of fact this particular log was perfect, and we cleaned up $3,000 on the deal. But it was gambling pure and simple."—New York Sun.

Not From Politeness.

This was heard in an overcrowded Boston elevated train:

"Say, Dick," said the young man whose football tactics had won him a strap in the rush—"say, Dick, I've been riding in on the 'L' every morning except Sundays and holidays for two years, and I've never given up a seat to a lady yet."

"You're a polite one," sneered Dick.

"Nothing of the kind," retorted the young man. "I've never had a seat to give up."—Boston Post.

Sweet Sarcasm.

"Daddy, what makes your nose so dreadfully red?" asked a little boy of his father one day at dinner.

"The east wind, of course!" the father answered gruffly. "Pass that decanter and don't talk so much."

"Yes, Tommy," said the boy's mother sweetly, "pass your father the east wind and be careful not to spill any on the tablecloth!"—London Mail.

His "Turnout."

Clerkley—Isn't this earlier than your usual time for going home?

Barkley—Yes, but my wife said if I came out by the 3:45 she'd meet me with the carriage.

"I didn't know you kept a horse and carriage."

"Er—er—it's a baby and carriage."

One Marked Difference.

As we understand it, the difference between grand opera and the other kind is that there is very little of the former that can be whistled.—Albany Journal.

Tommy's Congratulations.

Reggie—Tommy, do you know I'm going to marry your sister? Tommy—Then I think I'll go and congratulate mother.

Malice drinks one-half of its own poison.—Seneca.

ADAM WAS REAL GENTLEMAN

That Fact Is Thoroughly Demonstrated by the Manner In Which He Treated Eve.

Was Adam a sneak or a gentleman? Mr. George A. Crawford thinks a gentleman, and has written a very jolly pamphlet to prove it. Adam, it appears, has been misquoted. He is made to say: "The woman thou gavest me tempted me, and I did eat"—a remark unworthy the foremost man of time. What Adam did say was: "The woman thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat." Mr. Crawford prints the words "to be with me" in large and resonant capitals, feeling that they reflect credit upon Adam.

You see what the father of the race was driving at. Required to pick between Paradise without Eve and Eve without Paradise, he stuck out for Eve. He was a gentleman. Had he been a sneak, he would have argued that he never meant to marry Eve, but was imposed upon, owing to inexperience. Perhaps you recall that his acquaintance among girls had been rather limited. The first one he saw caught him. Thus, he might have begged the Judge to set him free, citing as precedents the affair of the young gentleman who took part in charades. Said this delightful youth: "I tell you what, Miss Bunthorne, we'll act 'Paradise Lost.' I'll propose; you reject me; they'll never guess it." Any judge unable to appreciate the appositeness of the citation and its argumentative potency might as well retire.

Clerks rejoice in Mr. Crawford's rehabilitation of Adam. It will be a boon to the lovers of genealogy. Most Bostonians trace their ancestry as far back as Hyman Cohen of Jerusalem or Terence O'Malley of Cork, but hesitate to go further. They are afraid of Adam. Regarding him as a sneak, they are in terror lest thorough investigation prove them to be descended from him. No longer need they quail. Crawford's pamphlet in hand, they can say to the genealogist: "Go as far as you like!"—Clerk of the Day in Boston Transcript.

NOT FAMILIAR WITH MONEY

Many Poor Children in the Public Schools Do Not Know Pieces of Larger Denominations.

Unfamiliarity with money gives children a queer idea of the value of certain coins. A 50-cent piece dropped from the pocket of a visitor to a New York school and was returned by a small girl with the remark: "Here, sir, is your $10."

The man laughed in spite of himself, but the teacher looked sad.

"Poor little things," she said. "How can you expect them to know any better? They never see a piece of money bigger than a quarter. They are as sharp as a coin collector on cents, nickels, dimes and quarters, and can almost tell the date across the room, but a piece of money bigger than that is such a rarity in their homes that they are apt to call anything from one to a hundred dollars."

"When I first took charge of this class there wasn't a child in the room who could name the denomination of a coin above a quarter. They had heard of big money, but had never seen it. They have had several lessons in identifying Uncle Sam's money, but that particular girl happened to be absent, so it is not strange that she should take your half dollar for $10."

Find Petrified Women.

In the course of the excavations which are still being made at Pompeii the body of a petrified woman has been discovered. On the body were jewels of great value, including bracelets, necklaces, and chatelaines, and it is assumed from this that their wearer belonged to the patrician class. Especially remarkable among the jewels are two clasps, each composed of twenty-one pearls in a cluster. These clasps have both an artistic and an archaeological value, for nothing comparable with them has been found before among the ruins of Pompeii. Pompeii, on the Neapolitan Riviera, was founded about 600 B. C., and down to the time of its destruction, A. D. '79, it was a sort of Rome-super-Mare, frequented by the aristocracy, if not by Caligula and Nero, in whose honor it erected triumphal arches. Fed from the capital with every luxury and distinction, it included temples in which the inhabitants were encouraged to make costly sacrifices. The city of Pompeii was nearly ruined by earthquake in A. D. '63, but it had returned to its former gayety and licentiousness when in '79 it was overwhelmed by the ashes of Vesuvius.

Memorable Racing Day.

The Melbourne Cup is a national institution in Australia and is almost as well-known as the English Derby in sporting circles the world over. This year was the jubilee of the race, and there was a record crowd to witness the victory of the Victorian-owned, but English-bred Comedy King. Mr. Prain, one of the members of the Scottish agricultural commission, visiting Australia, described the cup meeting as the spectacle of a lifetime, and altogether a memorable day.

Hill's lot; thence north 36 degrees sixty-six feet to a post in the line between Barclay Brothers Land and land of party of the first part; thence north 44½ degrees west 542 feet to a post on bank of Mill pond; thence along said Mill Pond south 58½ degrees 66 feet to the place of beginning, and being the same land which Jacob Shafer and wife conveyed to William A. Shafer by deed acknowledged Nov, 17, 1890 and recorded in Cameron County in Deed Book "K", page 189.

ALSO

ALL that certain piece or lot of land situate in Grove Township, Cameron County, Penna., bounded and described as follows, to wit: Beginning at the corner of Barclay's land; running thence north 48½ degrees west 10 rods to an iron pin corner; thence north 37 degrees east 4 rods; thence south 48½ degrees east 10 rods to line of Barclay lands; thence along the line of Barclay lands south 37 degrees west 4 rods to the place of beginning; containing ¼ of an acre, more or less, and being a part of a larger tract of land deeded to the grantor by deed from James and Margaret Shafer bearing date of 8th of July, A. D., 1872. This piece of land herein described is bounded on the north and west by lands of Jacob Shaffer et ux., and on the south and east by lands of Barclays; being the same land which Jacob Shafer and wife conveyed to Mary Rosetta Hill by deed dated March 21, 1893, and recorded in Cameron County in Deed Book "N", page 58.

ALSO

ALL that certain piece, parcel or tract of land situate, lying and being in the Township of Grove, County of Cameron and State of Penna., bounded and described as follows: On the north by lands of Adam Logue, on the east by the First Fork of the Sinnamahoning Creek, on the south by lands of Jacob Shafer and wife and on the west by the public road; beginning at a post on the Warrant line and on the west bank of the creek; running thence west on the Warrant line twenty and six tenths (20.6) rods to a post on the east side of the public road; thence south ten (10) degrees west eight (8) rods to a large rock; thence south six (6) degrees east twenty-four and four-tenths (24 4.10) rods to a post; thence south seventy-eight (78) degrees east nineteen (19) rods to the west side of the creek; thence up the west bank of the creek, north one (1) degree east thirty-six and one-tenth (36.1) rods to the place of beginning. Containing four (4) acres and fifty-four (54) sq. rods, be the same more or less, and being a part of land conveyed to Jacob Shafer by deed from James Shafer and Margaret, his wife, said deed being duly recorded in the Office for the recording of deeds in Cameron county and State of Pennsylvania, and being the same land which Jacob Shafer and wife conveyed to Chas. C. Clontz by deed dated July 14, 1893, recorded in Deed Book "G", page 68, in Office for recording of Deeds in and for Cameron County.

ALSO

ALL that certain piece, parcel or lot of land situate, lying and being in the Township of Grove, County of Cameron and State of Pennsylvania, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at station No. 959 plus 30 and extending to station No. 985 plus 62 including both stations of the line of the Northern Susquehanna Railroad Company, now the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railroad Company, as now located and constructed upon that certain tract of land bounded on the north by lands of Charles Clontz, on the east by the First Fork of the Sinnamahoning Creek, on the south by the lands of G. W. Perkins estate and on the west by the public road leading from Sinnamahoning to Wharton. The line above described being the centre line of the right of way of the said Railroad Company and this release to include the full right of way which shall be sixty-six feet, thirty-three feet on each side of the above described centre line as marked between the stations above named.

ALSO

ALL the following described tract or piece of land, to wit: Beginning at a point on the east line of the right of way of the Northern Susquehanna Railroad Company, now the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railroad Company, and thirty-three feet from and measured at right angles to the centre line of the main track of the said Railroad, such point being situate opposite a point in the upper end of a straight line in the track and designated as 960 plus 69.3, said right of way line having a course to the south 47 degrees 21 minutes west; thence in a northerly direction and on a curve to the left 359.7 feet with a radius of 229 feet to a post; thence in a southerly direction on a curve to the right 339.8 feet with a radius of 295 feet to a post; thence north 66 degrees 39 minutes west 66 feet to a post; thence in a northerly direction on a curve to the left 263.7 feet with a radius of 229 feet to a post; thence in a westerly direction on a curve to the left 359.7 feet with a radius of 229 feet to a post, said post being in the right of way line and 33 feet distant from the centre line of main track of said Railroad; thence north 47 degrees 21 minutes east 524 feet to the place of beginning, containing 1.32 acres, more or less, being the same lands released from the lien of the judgment upon which this execution issued by release dated April 19, 1905.

The land above described and intended to be sold in the Jacob Shafer farm at Sinnamahoning, Pa., contains two hundred acres, more or less, about fifty of which are cleared and under cultivation; the balance being in woodland, and there is thereupon erected a two story dwelling house, a frame barn and other outbuildings, and has a good orchard of well selected fruit trees in bearing and a good supply of never failing water.

Siezed and taken into execution and to be sold as the property of the estate of Jacob Shafer, deceased, T. J. Shafer, administrator, at the suit of Adaline B. Saterlee et. als.

ALSO

ALL that certain piece, parcel and lot of land situate, lying and being in the Township of Shippen, County of Cameron and State of Pennsylvania, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of Warrant No. 4967; thence south by the eastern line of said warrant one hundred and forty-one perches to a hemlock for a corner; thence west forty-four perches to a post corner; thence north seventeen and three-tenths perches to a maple, a corner; thence west ninety-one and six-tenths perches to a chestnut oak for a corner; thence north one hundred and seventy-four and six-tenths perches to a post in the north line of said warrant; thence along said line, south sixty-eight degrees east one hundred and fifty perches to the place of beginning. Containing one hundred and sixteen acres, be the same more or less. Being part of said warrant 4967. Excepting and reserving therefrom all reservations and rights of way contained in deed from J. Fome, and others, to Charles B. Howard and others, recorded in Cameron County Deed Book "G," page 264 to which reference is had, and being the same land which Charles B. Howard and wife by deed dated May 12th, 1888, and recorded in Cameron County Deed Book "K", page 11, granted and conveyed unto Lafayette Lockwood.

AND ALSO that certain piece of land being part of warrant number 2913, lying on the south side of the Sinnamahoning Creek between the mouth of North Creek and Clear Creek, embracing "Cowslip Spring" and Dry Run. Beginning at a post the southwest corner of the land hereby conveyed and being the southwest corner of warrant number 2913 and the southeast corner of warrant No. 2959; thence along the division line of the above two warrants north twenty-four perches to a post; thence by lands, now or formerly occupied by James W. Ingram, north thirty-four degrees and thirty minutes east ninty-six perches to a post; thence by land formerly of Jirah Carter north twenty degrees east twenty-one perches to a posi; thence north eighteen degrees and thirty minutes east thirty-four perches to a post in the centre of the road leading from the "Big Elk Lick" down the Sinnamahoning Creek to Emporium; thence along said road south fifty-nine degrees east twenty-nine and nine-tenths perches to a post; thence by land now or formerly of P. Culver south fourteen perches to a post; thence east one and one fourth —— to a post; thence by land now or formerly of Morris Lewis south one hundred and sixty-five and seven-tenths perches to a post on the south line of said warrant No. 2913; thence along the division line of warrant No. 2913 and 4967 north sixty-eight degrees west one hundred and seven perches to the place of beginning. Containing seventy-three acres and five perches, be the same more or less, and being the same land which Isabella Chadwick, devisee and executrix of the last Will and Testament of Elihu Chadwick, deceased, by deed dated April 17, 1883, and recorded in Cameron County Deed Book "I", page 14, granted and conveyed unto the said Lafayette Lockwood.

The land above described is the Lafayette Lockwood farm in Shippen Township, and has thereon erected a two story frame dwelling house, a frame barn, tool house, spring house, hog house, hen house and other necessary outbuildings; there is a well selected orchard of about 25 apple trees in bearing, and it is watered by the famous "Cowslip Spring."

Seized, taken into execution and to be sold as the property of Lafayette Lockwood Estate. Randolph Lockwood, Executor, at the suit of S. S. Smith.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Explosives In Your Body.

The human body contains no fewer than four substances which are so inflammable that in a pure state they will "go off" by spontaneous combustion. For instance, there is phosphorus. The body of a person weighing 120 pounds contains twenty-two ounces of this substance, which, as everybody knows, readily takes fire of its own accord if exposed to the air. It is combined with lime to make the bones, taking the form of phosphate lime. The body of a human being weighing 120 pounds contains nearly one and a half ounces of magnesium, two ounces of sodium and nearly two and a half ounces of potassium. The first of these, a substance of silvery whiteness, is so readily and fiercely combustible that it has to be kept tightly corked in bottles to prevent it from igniting of its own accord. Sodium will take fire if thrown into water, and so likewise will potassium —the latter with great violence, finally exploding and throwing a shower of sparks into the air.—New York World.

Hospital Fighters.

Into a hospital came two men with battered faces.

"Street fight?" said the surgeon in charge.

It was. Under the doctor's directions orderlies moved beds and patients around until the newcomers were separated the length of the ward.

"In this case that precaution may not be necessary," he said, "but after a street brawl it very often is. Before we learned the peculiarities of those people it happened more than once that two men who were mortal enemies were brought in and laid out side by side. Each saw his advantage and was foxy enough to keep still until both were left alone in adjoining cots; then they sailed into each other tooth and nail, trying to finish the job that had been interrupted in the street. Once or twice they nearly succeeded. Now chance patients with pugilistic tendencies are placed so far apart that a neighborly interchange of uppercuts is out of the question.—New York Press.

The Word "Chap."

"Chap" is simply an abbreviation of chapman, the merchant of former days, and is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "ceap," a bargain. The word almost brings before us the loud voiced "cheap Jack" as he cries his wares in the cheaping or market. Chap seems to have come into common use at the end of the sixteenth century and is rarely mentioned in books before 1700. Johnson does not recognize it, though Steele uses it in 1712 in the Spectator ("If you want to sell, here is your chap"), and it is found in Bailey's Dictionary, 1731. Its original meaning of a buyer or seller still lingers in the dialects of many counties. Coupled with the adjectives old, young, little, poor, it was and is used in familiar language, as is its relative, a queer "customer." Todd, 1818, affirms that a good chap meant one to whom credit might be given, whereas not qualified by good it was a term of contempt.—London Standard.

A Mighty Appetite.

We eat, but we no longer stuff. The great stuffers of the past are dead. What of that seventeenth century Kentish man Nicholas Wood, for example, who would eat a whole hog at a sitting and follow it up the next day with thirty dozen pigeons? Withal this possessor of a "Kentish stomach" was a sportsman. As proof of this there is that record of his challenge to Taylor, the water poet, to "eat at one time as much black pudding as would reach across the Thames at any place to be fixed by Taylor himself between London and Richmond." Well might old Fuller moralize over that appetite of Wood's. "Let us raise our gratitude," he said, "to the goodness of God, especially when he giveth us appetite enough for our meat and yet meat too much for our appetite."—Westminster Gazette.

The Moss Troopers.

Moss troopers was the name given to the desperate plunderers and robbers who secreted themselves throughout the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries in the "mosses" on the borders of Scotland. These outlaws were largely made up of deserters and criminals from the armies of England and the continent, and their depredations and cruelties were the terror of the region infested by them. Many severe laws were passed against them, but they were not fairly extirpated until the eighteenth century.

Watered.

"If you are looking for bargains," said the broker, "I can suit you. I can offer you some stocks at 10 cents a share."

"But why are they so cheap?" demanded the lady shopper.

"You see, they have been slightly damaged by water."—Washington Herald.

He Took It.

Mrs. Stoplate—Do you remember when we were children and I used to come and play with you?

Miss Tersleep—Yes, and your mamma never let you stay more than an hour. Those were the happy days!

A Would Be Widow.

He (who has just proposed)—I hope you don't think that I am too old for you? She—Oh, no! I was only wondering if you were old enough.—Illustrated Bits.

Queer Comparison.

"Briggs reminds me of an encyclopedia."

"Smart?"

"No; thick."—Boston Transcript.

The "Tea Leafer."

A good deal of the tea consumed by the working classes in the days when Arthur Young complained of the addiction to this luxury had never seen either India or China. In one of John Ashton's works on England he cites a case in which a boy charged with gambling stated that the money found in his possession had been made by picking tea leaves. This led to the discovery that many persons made a living by picking sloe leaves and whitethorn leaves in the fields near Camberwell and selling them to a local cowkeeper for a penny a pound. One man said he picked from fifty to sixty pounds a day and always found a market for them. The leaves were subsequently sold to a wholesale merchant, who obtained as much as 8 shillings a pound for them under the guise of tea. The merchant was prosecuted and fined, not for adulteration, but for defrauding the revenue. And the "tea leafer" is still the slang name for the petty thief.—London Standard.

Whims of Parrots.

"It is odd," said the bird store keeper, "but it is true, how people come into a bird store and expect to open up a conversation with a parrot offhand. They fail and then make up their mind that the parrot is worthless. This will apply to a majority of seekers after a talking parrot. They do not give the bird credit for the sense it actually possesses. There are parrots valued at anywhere from $50 to $500 that will not be coaxed into conversation with a stranger nor while he is present, although they are the very best of talkers. Parrots often refuse to perform when there are purchasers looking on, but once the store is clear of them they will chatter away through their whole vocabulary as if their very lives depended on their being heard. This obstinacy often spoils good sales. Most parrots will talk to a girl or woman much quicker and freer than to a boy or a man."—Browning's Monthly.

Ostriches and Their Eggs.

A singular thing about ostriches is the way they bring up their babies. To begin with, there are a good many eggs in the nest (dug out of the hot sand), but the eggs were laid by different mothers. Ostriches do not lay eggs every day, and, being far apart, they would not hatch together. When the nest is prepared, therefore, all the ladies in the neighborhood are invited to contribute an egg apiece, the hostess returning the favor in due time.

Ostrich eggs are delicious. One weighs three pounds, or is equal to a dozen of a hen's. They are very convenient, too, for the hunters in the desert. They not only furnish a delightful meal, but a dish to cook in. The shell is hard and thick, and the egg is set on the fire, a hole is broken in the top, it is stirred with a stick, and when it is done the saucepan serves as a dish as well.—New York Tribune.

The Name of Rio de Janeiro.

Rio de Janeiro owes her name to the accident of a date and the mistake of her discovery. When Alphonso de Souza, the Portuguese navigator, found himself in the spacious bay he imagined he had found the mouth of a noble river, and because the day happened to be the 1st of January, 1531, he named the supposed river after the first month of the year. The name was not applied to the city that grew up on the slopes of the hills till many years afterward, but San Sebastian, the original name, is now almost forgotten. Rio as a city purchases the beauty of her site at the cost of health, for the giant ridges that form the beautiful background to the town shut out the breezes that might blow tropical nuisances harmlessly to sea.—London Spectator.

Astrology and War.

It has been stated on what is said to be good authority that a representative of the Prussian government asked of a French astrologer the proper time to pick a quarrel with France. After carefully comparing horoscopes of high officials he answered that any hour in the afternoon as near as possible midway between the 9th and 11th of July, 1870. On the 11th of July William snubbed Benedetti, the French emissary, and on the 12th friendly relations ceased.

Economy In the Home.

"What the land needs is an era of economy in the home."

"Yes?"

"Yes. Don't you agree with me?"

"Certainly, but—er"—

"Well?"

"Would you mind going home past my house and telling my wife about it?"—Houston Post.

Very Awkward.

"Your Albert is going bald, ain't 'e, Mrs. Smithers?"

"Yes, Mrs. Peters, 'e certainly is gettin' 'igh 'eaded, and it makes it very awkward for the pore dear. When 'e washes 'e 'as to keep 'is 'at on 'is 'ead to tell where 'is face finishes!"—London Mail.

Utter Waste.

"We all sigh for something unattainable."

"That's right. My wife has never been able to find any good use for the burned matches."—Washington Herald.

The Way of the World.

"Isn't it awful? According to the papers, there just seems to be one revolution after another."

"Yes. That's the way the world goes round."—Judge.

It is the peculiarity of a fool to be quick in seeing the faults of others while he is blind to his own.
